SUPT. DEMMEL MAKES REPORT ASKED OF HIM AND SIX CITY DETECTIVES ARE DISCHARGED

Old and Faithful Employes of Police Department Are Sacrificed by the Machine.

STONE'S ADVICE WITH REGARD TO OLD SOLDIERS RECALLED

Victims of the Ax Say That Demmel Is Incompetent and Unfit to Manage Force of Intelligent Men.

MUNICIPAL TRAGEDY IN FOUR ACTS

WITH LOTS OF THRILLS TO FOLLOW

At a meeting of the salary revision committee of Pittsburgh councils held on Wednesday, October 29, Philip Demmel, superintendent of the bureau of detectives, was summoned and called upon to answer several interrogatories. He made a number of frank admissions which aroused the ire of the machine politicians, and they demanded action. By this time they probably realize that their demand has been complied with. There appears to have been action a-plenty.

Demmel made no secret of the fact that his administration was hampered by the demands of ring politicians and that he was compelled to do his work with inefficient men whom he had no power to discharge. End of Act I.

Heavy Leading Man Appears.

Recorder J. O. Brown, chairman of the so-called Republican city committee, better known as the machine, lost no time in acceding to the demand for action. He sent the following letter:

PITTSBURGH, October 30, 1902.

"Philip Demmel, Esq., Superintendent Bureau of Detectives:

"Dear Sir—A morning paper quotes you as saying before the councilmanic committee the following:

"'Politics is responsible for the demoralization of the detective force. I cannot pick my men, but have to take what material is sent me. For the same reason I can't even discipline them. We must have a diffrent method before the detective bureau will be really efficient. The fault lies with the method of appointment in vogue. A man responsible for people under him should be allowed to choose them. But I am not only powerless to choose—I can't even dismiss men who are incompetent.'

"If you are properly quoted, you said to the committee what you know to be absolutely untrue. On the day of your appointment I consulted with you in reference to your detectives, and you said that you were satisfied with them. Every appointment that has been made has been with your approval, and you have frequently told me that you were satisfied with your men and that you were doing good work. If there has been a lax of discipline in your bureau you have never reported it, and I have never had a case before me from your bureau since you have been in charge. I have always told you that you must have a free hand in suppressing crime, and that you were required to make complaint in case of incompetency whenever such occurred.

"I now ask you to make me immediately a written report as to your opinion of the efficiency and worth of every man employed in your bureau, and I pledge you, as I did upon your taking charge of the bureau, that every man that you certify as being incompetent will be removed promptly. And I will approve your naming the men to fill the vacancies irrespective of politics, religion or color. If your bureau is inefficient, I want you to step to the front and make it efficient, and I will approve your appointments.

"You are required to furnish the aforesaid report by next Saturday noon, in writing.

"Very truly yours,

"J. O. BROWN, City Recorder."

End of Act II.

Signs of an Approaching Tragedy.

The answer of Supt. Demmel to Recorder Brown's order for a report on the city detectives is as follows:

"PITTSBURGH, November 1, 1902.

"The Hon. J. O. Brown, City Recorder:

"Dear Sir—In compliance with the request contained in your letter of the 30th ult., viz.: That I give you in writing my opinion of the efficiency and worth of every man in my bureau, I beg leave to respectfully submit the following:

"PHILIP DEMMEL, Superintendent Bureau of Detectives."

"Edward Barry—Comparatively a new man; does not know many thieves, but is a hard and willing worker. Is much acquainted among business men, citizens generally. A useful man.

"William Bradley—A new man; most too old to ever develop any qualifications necessary to make a detective.

"George Cole—A new man, but with long training as a police officer. Knows very few foreign thieves, but is a good, sensible and energetic worker, and especially efficient among the colored race. A good officer.

"James Eagan—A good, all around man.

"William Elmore—Has an extensive acquaintance among the crooks of the country. An ambitious officer.

"Harry Jones—A new man; seems to have neither qualifications nor inclinations to fill the position he holds.

"Richard Kelly—An old officer; especially useful in working up cases and protecting the public from frauds and imposters. Very intelligent officer.

"Thomas Malley—A new man; has been sick for some time; have had no opportunity to judge of his ability.

"Charles McGovern—A fair man, but hard to manage; rather insubordinate.

"William McElroy—An old officer of mediocre ability.

"John Roach—An old officer; a medium, all-around man.

"William Shore—An old officer.

"A. L. Sowbrant—A new man with a large acquaintance among thieves. A good, hard and willing worker in any branch of the business.

"George Waggoner—An old officer with a long experience and acquaintance with local crooks. A fair, all-around man."

End of Act III.

The Awful Slaughter.

Recorder Brown's answer to this report was as follows:

"PITTSBURGH, November 1, 1902.

"Philip Demmel, Esq., Superintendent Bureau of Detectives:

"Dear Sir—I beg leave to acknowledge receipt of your report of even date, giving your opinion of the efficiency and worth of the employes in your bureau. Acting thereon, I direct you to notify the following gentlemen of their removal from further service in your bureau on account of inefficiency and incompetency, as stated by you in your official report, to-wit:

"William Bradley.
"Harry Jones.
"Thomas Malley.
"Charles McGovern.
"William McElroy.
"William Shore.

"This gives you six vacancies, which you will proceed to fill with good and efficient men of your own selection, untrammelled by politics, creed or color, and I will approve the same. My positive orders to you are to make your bureau efficient.

"Very truly yours,

"J. O. BROWN, City Recorder."

End of Act IV.

N. B.—The audience is requested to remain seated for the tragedy is likely to conclude with a series of thrilling tableaux in which truth crushed to earth, several pursuing villains, avengers, old sleuths and other old stand-bys will take part.

Late last night Recorder Brown made public the report of Superintendent of Detectives Demmel relative to the efficiency of the members of his bureau as demanded by the recorder in the correspondence given above. At the same time Recorder Brown gave out for publication the letter he sent to Demmel on receipt of the report, in which he demands the removal of six well known members of the bureau, as set forth above.

The announcement that heads must fall came like a thunderclap. It was a genuine surprise. In these strenuous political times no one had for a moment supposed that anything would be done until after the election, and then it was anticipated that everything would be smoothed over.

Victims Were Angry.

There was consternation and confusion at the Safety building when the news was conveyed to the detectives by a reporter for The Gazette. At first everybody appeared paralyzed. When they recovered their breath things were said that would not look well in print. The detectives removed say there is no reason why Demmel should report adversely about them; that they have faithfully performed their duties as directed by Demmel. Incidentally they say things about Jo O. Brown that are not complimentary. Their fierce denunciation of Demmel is something fierce.

Most of the detectives had gathered at the bureau quarters during the early part of the evening. From their conversation it was apparent they did not anticipate the news in store for them. They were speaking of the manner in which they were working in their wards for the machine, and how they expected to be rewarded for it.

Most of the men deposed have been in

STORM THREATENS ON ELECTION DAY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(Special.)—Republican weather is not assured for New York on election day. A storm is working east from the lakes, which will reach New York Monday, and another is coming from the west gulf region, which is predicted to arrive in Southern New York some time Tuesday. This storm is said to be threatening.

QUAY WILL BE IN THIS CITY TODAY

He Will Take a Final Survey of the Local Situation.

COMES TO VOTE

Senator M. S. Quay will be in Pittsburgh today to make a final survey of the local situation, before the votes are cast tomorrow.

Mr. Quay came through from Philadelphia last night and went direct to his home in Beaver. He is entirely satisfied that the campaign has been successfully conducted and that a big majority will be given the Republican state ticket. He is amused rather than alarmed over the claim of Robert E. Pattison. The senator has in his possession a careful banvass of every county in the state, and he knows that the votes of tomorrow will show a magnificent majority for Pennypacker and the Browns.

Concerning his visit to this city today, he had nothing to say. He will know when he leaves here this evening, for his Beaver home, what can be expected from the county. The senator will vote early Tuesday morning and leave for Philadelphia, where he will receive election returns tomorrow evening.

PORTIA WASHINGTON IS NOT AT WELLESLEY

School Officials Declare She Was Not Dismissed but Failed in Examinations.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BOSTON, MASS., Nov. 2.—As the result of many petty annoyances, Miss Portia Washington, daughter of Booker T. Washington, the colored educator, has given up attending Wellesley college and is now a student at Bradford academy.

Despite a great deal of newspaper talk to the effect that Miss Washington was heartily welcomed by her co-students and made much of, the fact is that the college was divided into factions over her. Southern girls, of whom there are many at Wellesley, absolutely refused to associate with a colored girl, and they were upheld by many others.

A good many northern girls, however, called on her and were friendly with her in every way. The feeling about Miss Washington soon developed a hostile feeling between her supporters and her non-supporters, and considerable unpleasantness was the result.

The faculty, however, insist that the question of color had nothing to do with the failure of the young woman to enter Wellesley for a second year and state that her failure to pass her examination in music was the cause of her leaving the college.

ROOSEVELT MADE LEADER OF PARTY

One Certain Result of Campaign That Is Easily Seen.

VOTERS WITH HIM

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
603 Fifteenth St., N. W.,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 2.

Washington has watched the political campaign now closing more closely and with an interest more intense than any off-year contest in years. These two conclusions have been drawn—and with unanimity—by the leading members of both parties now at the capital:

Whatever the result may be on Tuesday, the character of the campaign made by the Republicans, especially in its closing days, has made President Roosevelt, beyond all question of doubt, beyond any possibility of argument, the real leader of his party.

It has assured his nomination to the presidency in 1904 without a contest.

The earnest appeals made at the eleventh hour, particularly in the fighting districts, to stand by and indorse the president, have emphasized the personal success of his administration and the wisdom and soundness of his policies. They mark, too, a personal victory for Mr. Roosevelt in a contest with congressional leaders, waged during the entire long session, and which was not of the president's seeking.

GOV. ODELL WINS.

Only Sofa Pillow This Time, But More Honors Are Coming Tomorrow.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(Special.)—A special from Binghamton to the World says:

When Gov. Odell visited Binghamton on last Tuesday he attended the fair of Malta commandery, Knights Templars.

The ladies of the fair asked him to buy chances on a sofa pillow. He bought 20 chances for $2 and at the drawing last night won the prize.

The pillow is leather, on which is burned the insignia of the order. It is valued at $35. It will be sent to Gov. Odell at Albany.

LOSES HIS SIGHT.

Janitor Does Not Know How to Use Soft Coal and Suffers the Consequences.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(Special.)—A special from Trenton N. J. to the World says:

Augustus Lyons, janitor of the Hamilton avenue school has lost his sight through his inexperience in the use of soft coal.

He was building a fire yesterday in a furnace and had piled up the coal until it was even with the door. He opened the door to see how the fire was burning. The coal was blazing fiercely.

At the opening of the door a down draught caused the flames to shoot out directly in his face. His hair was burned off and his head and neck horribly scorched.

TWO KILLED BY A BOMB IN CHICAGO

Eight Others Are Also Injured by the Explosion.

DEADLY WEAPON UNDER A HOUSE

Victims Blown to Fragments and Two Dwellings Destroyed.

ONE MAN IS ARRESTED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Nov. 2.—A dynamite bomb blew up the home of Joseph Kordeck, in Chicago Heights, today, killing two members of the family outright and injuring several others. The house was set on fire and burned, while that of a neighbor caught fire and was also destroyed.

The dead:

JOSEPH KORDECK, arms and legs blown off.
LUCY KORDECK, aged 2, body blown to pieces.
MRS. LUCY KORDECK, flesh blown off right side, injured internally; may die.
SEVEN CHILDREN, injured, but not seriously.

The explosion occurred while the family was asleep. The father and mother, with the daughter, Lucy, occupied a room in the front of the cottage. On the other side were rooms occupied by the rest of the family. The cottage stood two feet from the ground on wooden posts. The bomb was placed under the room occupied by the parents and the impact of the explosion tore a hole in the floor, blew the bed to pieces, dismembered Kordeck, and scattered into fragments the body of Lucy, who was sleeping with her parents. Pieces of flesh the size of a man's hand were the largest remnants of the child's body that could be found.

The force of the explosion was directly upward, and tore a piece of flesh from Mrs. Kirdick's side, and blew her through a window. The noise aroused the rest of the family and they had hardly time to escape from the flames which soon destroyed the cottage. Kordick's body, torn to shreds, was found in the debris after the fire.

Charles Smith, a former boarder at the Kordick house, who was paying attention to one of Kordick's daughters, has been arrested, charged with the crime. The Kordick girl was to have been married to another man next week. Smith declares he is innocent, but neighbors declare that he made threats to them that if the girl refused to be his wife he would blow up the entire family with dynamite.

Smith was absent from his room at the time of the explosion. His roommate, Thomas Kobilinski, claims that Smith returned to his room greatly excited, shortly after the explosion.

YOUNG COUPLE KILLED AT CROSSING BY TRAIN

Met Instant Death While Driving for Pleasure at Youngstown.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 2.—Two young people out for a pleasure drive were run down by a train at the Crab creek crossing on the Erie railroad tonight at 7 o'clock and both were instantly killed. The dead:

HERBERT J. HOFFMAN, aged 22, bookkeeper.
FLORENCE CARROLL, aged 19, stenographer.

The accident occurred at the same crossing where three weeks ago Henry Tod, Jr., was killed in an automobile. No one knows whether the horse was running away or the couple failed to hear the train. The engine struck the rear wheel of the buggy, throwing both out. Death was instantaneous in both cases. The horse was uninjured and was caught near the crossing.

AN INSULT TO WOMAN CAUSED TWO DEATHS

Escort Struck Joseph McIntyre of Allegheny a Fatal Blow.

MOTHER SUCCUMBS TO SUDDEN SHOCK

Victim's Companions Say He Was Intoxicated, Father Denies He Drank.

ASSAILANT IS AT LARGE

Two deaths have resulted from an insult to a woman. Joseph McIntyre, aged 21, of No. 1517 Arch street, Allegheny, died in the Allegheny General hospital yesterday morning from injuries received at the hands of the woman's escort. His mother, Mrs. John G. McIntyre, aged 49, died a few hours later at her home from the shock of her son's sudden death. The assault occurred late on Friday night, and although the Allegheny detectives have had the case since then the assailant is still at large.

Thomas Fagan of No. 1674 Perrysville avenue and P. J. Flanagan of Ella street, both of Allegheny, say they were with McIntyre Friday night, and that he was intoxicated and made an insulting remark to a young couple who were walking down Federal street. John G. McIntyre, the father, says that he was with his son until 10 o'clock on the night of the assault and that then he was not intoxicated and in fact did not drink at all.

Story of Two Men.

According to Fagan and Flanagan the three were in Pittsburgh on Friday night. About 10 o'clock they went to Allegheny and entered the saloon of the Federal hotel. All were intoxicated and were put out of the place. They went up Federal street to a saloon about two squares away.

On account of their condition they were also ejected from this place. McIntyre proposed they should go home. He was walking about 10 yards in advance of his companions. A man and woman were walking down Federal street, but they paid no attention to McIntyre and his companions.

At Sampson and Federal streets McIntyre walked directly up to the couple and said to the young man, "I would like to have your girl."

"You can have this," replied the woman's companion, as he knocked McIntyre down. His head struck the curbing hard.

Fatal Blow to Mother.

The couple passed on, and Fagan and Flanagan say they left their companion on the sidewalk, where he was found later by Officer John Abbott, who had the unconscious man taken to the hospital. McIntyre never regained consciousness, and his condition became steadily worse until he died yesterday.

As soon as word of the accident reached the McIntyre home, his mother and father hurried to the hospital. From Friday until Sunday morning, when the young man died, the mother watched patiently at his bedside and prayed for his recovery. Her vigil was not relaxed one second during the 36 hours he remained hovering between life and death.

When the end came she bore herself bravely and went peacefully to her home without a murmur, although dazed by the blow. She tried to sleep, but sleep would not come, and a scant three hours after her son's death she fell dead. It is thought that heart disease, superinduced by the shock of her son's death and her vigilance at his bedside, is responsible for her death.

Difference in Statements.

The story told by Fagan and Flanagan does not coincide with the one told by Mr. McIntyre. He claims to have been with his son all the evening until he left him at 10 o'clock. According to the others' story, McIntyre was in Pittsburgh with them during the evening. That Joseph McIntyre drank is also denied by his father.

Dr. Walter McCandless held a postmortem examination of McIntyre yesterday afternon at the morgue, and said he died from a blow in the head, which fractured his skull. He will hold a postmortem examination of Mrs. McIntyre this morning.

Neighbors of the McIntyres say that the fight was the result of a rivalry between McIntyre and his assailant for the hand of the young lady, who was present, but could not tell the name of the assailant.

EVIDENCES OF LEAKAGE ARE EASILY SEEN

Hundreds of Pittsburghers See Water Flow from Banks.

CONTRACTORS MAKE SWEEPING DENIAL

Director McCandless Signs Statement Contradicting His Own Words.

MACHINE IS DESPERATE

The leakage discovered in new Highland reservoir No. 2 is growing more serious every hour, and the leaks are to all appearances increasing in size with an outflow gradually getting larger. Despite the positive evidence that the new reservoir is letting out its contents through the embankments, the city officials proclaim that the leakage is not serious.

Congressman W. H. Graham, president of the Mercantile Trust Company, sponsor for Keeling & Bridge, the contractors building the reservoir, stated yesterday that he had been informed by Peter Ridge, a member of the firm, that the charges that the reservoir was leaking were false. He claimed that the water flowing from the reservoir came wholly from springs and not from any outlet in the walls of the basin.

Graham's Wail of Despair.

"The whole thing is a conspiracy for political effect," said Mr. Graham. "The Mercantile Trust Company has put up the money to complete the reservoir according to contract, and will make the reservoir good. I am tired of being abused about this reservoir. I know that it is done only to injure me and the party in the present campaign."

Congressman Graham stated that Contractor Ridge said to him also that John G. Trimble, the engineer employed by the department of public works to superintend the construction of the reservoir, had reported that there were no leaks in the reservoir, and that since the basin had been filled there had been no reduction in the supply except from evaporation.

Director McCandless, the head of the department of public works, has admitted, however, that the reservoir is leaking, although he claims that the leaks are not serious. A. B. Shepherd, superintendent of the bureau of water supply and distribution, refused to discuss the matter, although he does not deny that the existence of the leaks was reported to him, and by him to Director McCandless and others interested. Superintendent Shepherd states that Director McCandless is the only city official authorized to talk about the reservoir.

McCandless Had Troubles.

Director McCandless spent many anxious hours yesterday wrestling with the reservoir problem. He visited the basin early in the afternoon, but did not stay long. In order to allay the fears of the public and to counteract if possible the effect that has been caused by the publication that the water in the reservoir was leaking out, the contractors threw open the gates to the reservoir and permitted the public to go inside and walk along the walls. Many walked around the top of the embankment, far above the leaks.

Even from this altitude it was possible to see some of the streams issuing from the leaks in the earth banks, but most of the crevices are concealed by the undergrowth on the banks. The break on the south side, near the terminus of Negley avenue, were plainly visible from the top of the reservoir wall.

One of the largest leaks, on the north side of the reservoir, could be clearly seen also from the driveway to the zoo. Hundreds of people watched the streams from the roads, sidewalks and reservoir wall, and some, who wished to make a closer inspection, climbed along the side of the steep embankment.

The Leaks Are There.

They saw the leaks in walls and in making their way along the hillside got their clothes and feet wet and muddy for their pains. The path along the bottom of the reservoir embankments is almost impassible owing to the swampy condition of the ground.

On the northern and western sides of the basin the water appears not merely in spots, but saturates the entire side of the hill.

The claim that this is due to natural springs is disproven by the fact that the water is flowing over ground, covered grass and newly fallen autumn leaves.

An oil driller inspected the second leak from the boulevard. "There are two streams issuing from the ground at this point. One," he said, "is flowing at the rate of 50 barrels of water an hour."

The hole in the ground from which the water gushed forth has been enlarged since Saturday and the stream is larger. There are four or five streams of similar size issuing from the embankment on the three sides of the basin.

Scores of Holes in Walls.

The number of leaks in the reservoir cannot be approximately estimated. The swampy condition of the earth-banks indicate that instead of a dozen leaks there may be scores of crevices from which the water is oozing out.

A superficial inspection of the inside of the reservoir shows that the water is gradually getting lower, and that more water will have to be pumped in if the city officials do not wish it to become entirely drained.

The city officials and contractors, directly interested in the construction of the new Highland reservoir No. 2, held a conference yesterday in the reservoir office. The conference was attended by J. G. Trimble, the city engineer, employed in the construction of the reservoir; Director J. Guy McCandless and the contractors, Keeling & Ridge.

McCandless Contradicts Himself.

It was decided that Keeling & Ridge and Director McCandless, as the head

CHAIRMAN EVANS' LAST WORD TO VOTERS

The Issue Is, Shall the Ring and the Boss System Continue? Go to the Polls Early and Vote a Straight Ticket Against the Machine.

Dr. Cadwalader Evans, chairman of the Citizens county committee, has issued the following address to the voters of Allegheny county:

"The campaign for better government in the county of Allegheny is now drawing to a close. The issue before you is, 'Shall the ring and the boss system continue or shall it cease?'

"The campaign has been conducted in a dignified manner, so that this issue is brought distinctly and plainly before you. By your votes you give a public expression of your approval or disapproval of the methods of the ring in county affairs.

"Every candidate on the ring ticket has been a life-long adherent of the principles of bossism and ring rule. Every candidate on the Citizens party ticket is pledged to oppose such system in our politics. It rests with you to say whether ring rule shall continue.

"The press has been filled and the mail has been burdened with publications emanating from the ring relative to fraudulent tax receipts and fraudulent tax orders, which publications were sent out solely for the purpose of intimidating and misleading voters.

"The Citizens party distinctly and explicitly denies the use of any and all unlawful methods of procuring votes, and disclaims any knowledge of the use of any such methods. We believe that the guilty knowledge on the part of the ring of their past and present unlawful acts in this respect has prompted them to make these charges against the Citizens party.

"All good citizens are earnestly requested to go to the polls on election day early and vote a straight ticket against the ring. Take no chance of losing your vote by casting a mixed ballot!"

ROOSEVELT SEES BATTLE SCENES

President Visits the Sanguinary Field of Cedar Mountain.

HEARS STORY OF FIGHT

A Participant in the Struggle Tells the Chief Magistrate of Terrible Encounter Between Union and Confederate Troops.

BRANDY STATION, VA., Nov. 2.—President Roosevelt passed several hours this afternoon on the battlefield of Cedar Mountain. Accompanied by Secretary Root, Secretary Cortelyou and Dr. Rixey, the president drove to the site of the sanguinary struggle and there received from an eye-witness and participant, an account of the fight.

The president's party arrived at the battlefield shortly before 2 o'clock. They were followed by a procession of carriages containing people from Culpepper and surrounding country. The president drove over the road which years ago was the stage route between New York and New Orleans. On arrival at the battlefield, which is dotted here and there by monuments marking the positions of the troops during the fight, the contest was explained to the president by Judge Grimsley, who now is a member of the bench of this judicial circuit. The judge was a captain in the Sixth Virginia cavalry, and was a participant in the fight. The president, a cavalryman himself, was interested particularly in the account of the famous cavalry charge made during the battle of Cedar Mountain.

Reception on Battlefield.

The union and confederate cavalry met in a depression not far from Cedar Mountain. While the battle did not last long and was brought on quite unexpectedly, it was frightfully sanguinary, the losses on both sides being about 3,200. The president was notably interested in a monument erected last August, on the anniversary of the battle, by the survivors of the Twenty-eighth New York infantry which lost in the engagement 59 per cent of its men, including nearly every commissioned officer.

In the very heart of the battlefield, President Roosevelt today held an informal reception. Many people had gathered from the surrounding country, and after Judge Grimsley had described the battle the president received informally those who had assembled on the field.

President Attended Church.

This morning the president and his party attended religious services at the Baptist church of Culpepper, about five miles from the home of Representative John F. Rixey. Until a short time before the services began it was not known that the president was to be present. No special services marked his presence. The Rev. E. W. Windfrey, pastor of the church, one of the oldest religious organizations in Virginia, made a touching reference to the president in his opening prayer.

Subsequently the party took luncheon at the residence of S. Russell Sm[illegible], a brother-in-law of Dr. Rixey, who is treasurer of the county of Culpepper.

Tonight the president is again the guest of Representative Rixey at his country home near this village.

The presidential train will arrive in Washington tomorrow morning at 11:15. Half an hour later the president will leave Washington on a special train over the Pennsylvania railroad for Oyster Bay where he will vote on Tuesday.

PART OF BRAIN GONE, BUT BOY STILL LIVES

San Francisco Doctors Expect Him to Soon Be at Play Again.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—With part of his brain gone George Parsons, aged 8, who was kicked in the head a week ago, still lives.

The doctors who attended him deem his case one of the most remarkable in medical science. At first they were hopeless of his recovery, because his skull was crushed and a large area of brain matter disturbed. They removed several spoonfuls of the destroyed brain and pieces of the skull that had lodged there, and closed the cavity with a silver plate.

The operation was performed while the boy was perfectly conscious. He did not seem to feel the pain at all.

He has been getting along so well since the treatment that the doctors say he will soon be at play with his young friends.

Don't attempt to cut your ticket, because you don't know what view an election board may take of a mixed ballot. Advt.

Trolley Line Overburdened.

Hundreds of persons who attended the All-Souls Day celebration yesterday in the St. Augustine cemetery, near Millvale, were obliged to walk home, owing to the lack of power to operate the street cars. Several thousand persons attended the exercises and extra cars had been placed on the line to accommodate the crowds. The power was weak and over two hours were required to make a trip, which usually is made in less than one hour. Visitors from out of town missed their train in consequence of the delay, while others were compelled to return on foot.

"Turn the rascals out." Mismanagement and favoritism in the public offices have gone beyond the point of toleration. Vote for the Citizens ticket and a fair deal. Advt.

CAR SHORTAGE BRINGS MISERY

Tennessee Coal Operators Compelled to Come to Aid of Miners.

FAMILIES IN WANT

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 2.—The unprecedented shortage of coal cars has caused want and misery and threatened starvation to creep into the homes of the miners of the Tennessee fields, especially those at Coal Creek, where the miners have worked but six days in the past six weeks.

The condition has become so serious that the companies have been compelled to come to the aid of those who are without food or supplies, and are issuing supplies from their commissaries, although they do not owe the miners money.

The conditions around the mines are worse than ever known before, except after a great disaster, and the miners and their families have scarcely recovered from the effects of the Fraterville mine horror last May, when over 200 men were killed.

Actual starvation threatens with the coming of the cold weather, unless more cars are furnished by the Southern road.

Good government is a blessing. It will never be had in Allegheny county while a vestige of the old machine party remains. Aid the movement for good government by electing the Citizens county ticket. Advt.

OSSIP GABRILOWITSCH NEAR TO PADEREWSKI

Russian Pianist Receives Great Ovation on First New York Appearance.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Herald Building, Herald Square, NEW YORK, Nov. 2.

The success of Ossip Gabrilowitsch at the Metropolitan Opera house tonight ranks him near to Paderewski as a pianist. It was his first appearance, and he received an ovation.

This Russian genius is not yet 25, but is achieving the fame Rubenstein predicted for him. To be a prodigy in one's native city, to win the approval of great masters who teach, and to achieve distinction in your native land, is one thing, but to appear before strangers and critics in a foreign country and be compared with the few great pianists of the world is quite another thing. Yet Gabrilowitsch has met the critics and won success.

Walter Damrosch, with 70 musicians furnished the orchestral music, and Mme. Maconda, the soprano, sang.

WAS SPEAKEASY DAY.

They and the Beer Clubs Operated Freely Without Police Interference.

Speakeasies were in full operation yesterday. Apparently the police had forgotten Supt. McAleese's "crusade," and, in consequence, liquor flowed freely. The last days of this campaign differed not in the least from the closing hours of other campaigns. The votes of speakeasy proprietors and their hangers-on are valuable in such a pinch as the present one, and as laxity in enforcing police regulations pleases them, the machine catered to them.

The beer clubs which were raided earlier in the campaign when a reputation for morality was sought by the police bureau, were wide open. The right to enter was not confined to "members," and nobody with a thirst needed to pant long before he found the means of quenching it. A surprise awaited visitors in many of the places, for drinks were often "on the house," and it was understood that certain machine candidates for office had provided the wherewithal.

Considerable drunkenness, more than is usual on Sunday, was observed. Hundreds of men staggered out and through the doors of the protected resorts and so-called "clubs."

Put in a new broom to sweep the county offices clean. Vote the Citizens ticket. Advt.

NATIVES INVADE ISLAND OF LEYTI

Gang of Ladrones Murder President of Small Village and His Wife.

ACTIVITY IN LUZON

Constabulary Defeat Bandit and Kill Number—Religious Fanatics Also at Work—Situation on Samar Is Improving.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

MANILA, Nov. 2.—A portion of a gang of Ladrones which has been operating on the island of Biliran, where they committed various outrages, crossed over to the island of Leyte last Wednesday and entered a small town near Carigara. Here they captured and beheaded the president of the town, murdered his wife, and abducted the president's children. The motive of this crime is said to have been the presidente's friendliness with the Americans.

Ladrones are again active in the provinces of Rizal and Bulacan, Luzon. Members of the native constabulary engaged these bandits twice during the past week at points close to Manila and succeeded in killing a number of them.

Reports received here indicate that the situation on the island of Samar is better than has been recently represented. A number of Dios Dios, or religious fanatics, are still operating there, but officials report that the Samar police are able to handle the situation.

The body of a native woman who was attended at her death by priests of the Catholic church of the Philippines, was refused interment yesterday at the Paco cemetery, which is owned by the Roman Catholic church. There was a scene at the cemetery, and the police were called in to maintain order.

In retaliation for this refusal of interment, "Bishop" Agilpay and other leaders of the schismatic movement, are discussing a plan to appeal to the courts to obtain possession of certain churches and other property in the Philippines.

CORPORATION MEMBERS TO CUT THEIR PRICES

Tube and Tin Plate Companies May Announce Reductions This Week.

The National Tube Company is to make a sharp reduction in the prices of merchant pipe today, or within the week, ostensibly to meet low-priced competition. An official of the company said last night that it has so far met none of the cut prices of independent concerns, believing that they would soon correct their quotations, but is now ready to take such action as will enable the company to retain its trade. Anything more specific as to the plan, he would not say, but it is understood that the reduction will be at least 10 per cent. The company recently announced an advance in the price of iron boiler tubes.

It is reported that the American Tin Plate Company will this week announce the anticipated lower price for new business in the first quarter of next year. The company has no sales representative in Pittsburgh with authority to discuss this. The reduction named in the rumor is 25 cents on the 100-pound box of plate.

The West Penn Telephone Company, with lines in Allegheny, Washington and Greene counties, is to float a $25,000 bond issue, the proceeds to be used in extending a line to Wheeling, and other improvements, including an exchange at Washington, Pa. The company is to acquire today all the property of the Chartiers Telephone Company, which operates a line between Carnegie and McDonald. The Chartiers company is already controlled by West Penn interests.

No New Record at Homestead.

The Homestead steel works is reported to have failed to meet the record of the great steel production of October last year, in its output last month. With a rush of orders and under the custom of working hard to advance the maximum production, there have been earlier starts on Saturday, but a number of serious breakdowns and unsatisfactory car service have in several departments kept down the production below that of last year.

There has been an increase of 15 per cent per capita in taxes during the past six years. Another term of ring control is dangerous. Vote the Citizens party ticket. Advt.

FRENCH LIKE OUR PRESIDENT BETTER THAN THEY DO THEIR OWN.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

Paris, Nov. 2.—In an article headed "Two Presidents," La Patrie tonight compares President Roosevelt with President Loubet. Referring to the French and American coal strikes, the paper says the energetic measures adopted by President Roosevelt brought the American strike to an end and declares that President Loubet was confronted by conditions exactly the same as those Mr. Roosevelt dealt with, but the president of France remained passive, with the result that the French strike continues, amid great misery and loss. The paper draws the conclusion that the American president, who is elected by the people, represents the people, whereas the president of France waits the slow process of parliament and the French people suffer from the reign of parliamentarism.

BUTCHERS TAKE FINAL STAND ON WAGE SCALE

Demand That Union Be Recognized by Wednesday Noon Or They Will Strike.

Organized butchers of Pittsburgh and Allegheny, at a meeting last night in Moorhead hall, voted with but one dissenting voice to go on strike Wednesday at noon against 16 meat houses unless their organization is recognized in the meantime. The conditions proposed as recognition give a leeway which is quite likely to avoid radical steps and the consequent tying up of the meat supply of the two cities after Wednesday. Employers are simply required either to consent to a wage conference before the time named or to an arbitration of the differences by five men selected in the usual way.

The employers concerned in the effort of the men to secure recognition for their organization and a wage agreement providing for uniformity in hours and wages are the Pittsburgh wholesalers who slaughter and the packing houses of the six members of the meat trust. About 700 men are employed by these houses and most are members of the union. At a meeting last night the men not members of the organization were represented and voted to abide by any action of the union.

The Pittsburgh organization, which is local union No. 128 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters' and Butcher Workmen, named its officers as a committee to meet the employers today and tomorrow in an effort to arrive at a settlement. This action was taken under advice from Homer D. Call of Syracuse, N. Y., general secretary of the organization, to Calvin Wyatt, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, who formed the Pittsburgh union and who was given power to act. The conference committee consists of Herman Lange, president; Michael Rinehart, secretary; Phillip Lange, treasurer; Fred Hawley, recording secretary; Calvin Wyatt and J. A. Keeler, vice president of the Iron City council of the federation, which has indorsed the movement of the butchers.

The board of business agents of the building trades is expected to indorse the movement this morning, and if it does there may be sympathetic action in connection with the new plant of the Pittsburgh Provision Company, under way at Herrs Island.

In their scale the butchers ask for wages which provide for an average advance of 7½ per cent and a 10-hour day. Members receiving higher wages are not to be held to the minimum. The usual union rules cover work on Sundays and holidays and there is a final clause which makes all employes of firms entering the agreement members of the union.

CLOSING SESSION TODAY.

Baptist Missionary Campaign Closes With Mass Meeting—Fourth Ave. Church to Choose Pastor.

The closing session of the missionary campaign in the Pittsburgh Association of Baptists will be held in the Fourth Avenue Baptist church today. Meetings have been held during last week in different churches, and yesterday the Rev. L. W. Cronkhite of Cassein, Burma, preached a missionary sermon at the Fourth avenue church.

At 9 o'clock this morning a conference for ministers of Pittsburgh and adjoining associations will be held. At 7:30 in the evening there will be a mass meeting. The speakers will be the Rev. W. M. Upcraft of Yachau, China; the Rev. C. V. Briggs, missionary to the Philippine islands, and the Rev. Cronkhite.

Tomorrow evening a special meeting of the advisory committee of the Fourth avenue church will be held, to complete important business preceding the annual meeting. It is probable that a successor to the Rev. L. C. Barnes, late pastor, who was called to Worchester, Mass., will be talked of. No action will be taken, however, as the pastors in the Baptist church are selected by vote of the congregation. This will be taken up at the annual church meeting Tuesday, November 11.

The people are supreme; all that they need to do is to come out and show their will at the ballot box. Advt.

LYNCHING THREATENED FOR MURDER OF SON

Boy Is Kicked to Death and His Sister Is Missing in Mountains.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

INEZ, KY., Nov. 2.—Pleasant Spradling, held for killing his 4-year-old son, and whose 15-year-old daughter is missing, is threatened with lynching. Spradling's family consisted of his wife, three daughters and a son. With his daughters and son the father was herding sheep last Friday. The boy was unable to keep up with the others. The father placed him on a stone beside a spring, telling him to wait until his return. The boy, becoming tired, began to peel the loose bark off a tree that overhung the spring. When the father returned he asked the boy who had stripped the tree. The boy replied that he had.

"I would rather have you dead than raise you to destroy everything on the farm," is the reply the father is said to have made, and then, it is charged, he picked up a stone and struck the boy on the head, knocking him down. Then, it is alleged, he kicked the prostrate boy in the head until he had killed him, and turning to his daughters, threatened them with a like fate if they ever told what had occurred. Afterward he went home and said the boy, while chasing sheep, had run against a tree and killed himself.

Becoming alarmed, Spradling took his eldest daughter and went to the mountains. His wife hired neighbors to bury the body of the child and then went to Judge E. Hersley. She told him of the death of her son and said she suspected her husband, who told her he was going into the woods to hunt squirrels, and added that at different times he had threatened to kill the whole family. Judge Hensley presented the case to the grand jury. One of the little girls told the jury her father had kicked the boy to death. Shortly afterward a sheriff's posse captured Spradling in the woods, but his eldest daughter was not with him. The posse is still searching for her, while Spradling is held on the charge of murder.

UNION FOR RIVER MEN.

Scheme to Have All Wage-Earners on the River Make Common Cause.

Labor leaders have a movement launched which plans the amalgamation of interests of all the men employed in the river traffic. The plan is to bring the marine engineers, firemen, ship carpenters, caulkers and deck hands into a federation which shall make common cause in all conflicts over working conditions. Co-operation of the miners loading coal for river traffic will also be sought.

Looking to this end the ship carpenters employed at Homestead, Elizabeth, Monongahela City, Brownsville and Morgantown have revived their organizations, which in some instances had lapsed. The American Federation of Labor is back of the new movement and its agent is Calvin Wyatt of Pittsburgh, the general organizer of that body.

At a conference Saturday with the marine engineers of Pittsburgh it was decided to appeal to their general organization to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor, which will pave the way for the Pittsburgh federation of river employes. The position of the engineers among these men make their action important.

D. H. EDGAR DEAD.

Former Second Vice President of L. & N. Worries Himself Ill Over Loss of Position.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(Special.)—Nervous collapse, resulting from worry over the loss of his position, which followed the passing of the control of the Louisville & Nashville railway from the Belmonts, caused the death, Saturday night, of Daniel H. Edgar, who for more than 20 years had been connected with the road, and when he was removed was second vice president.

Mr. Edgar was widely known in railroad circles. He was 57 years old. He was born in Philadelphia, but for many years had lived in New York.

COMMISSIONERS LEAVE SCRANTON

Will Devote Four Days to Middle and Lower Coal Districts.

SERMON BY SPALDING

The Bishop Makes No Reference in Church to Work of the Anthracite Strike Commission. To Enter Another Mine.

SCRANTON, PA., Nov. 2.—The mine strike commissioners left for Hazleton at 11 o'clock tonight to spend four days in further acquainting themselves with the physical features of mining. They had not decided up to the time of leaving how they would divide their time in the middle and lower districts. It was finally decided, though, that not more than four days would be devoted to the trip.

Assistant Recorder Neill was left behind to receive the miners' statement from President Mitchell tomorrow. On Thursday it is expected the operators' counter statement will be presented. The commissioners will then take a recess until Friday, November 14, by which time the two parties will be expected to have completed the preparation of their cases and be ready to go on with the hearings.

The commissioners will also devote the interim to preparations for the hearings by acquainting themselves with the details of the statements.

Bishop Spalding preached at the last mass in St. Peter's cathedral this morning. His fellow commissioners attended the service and occupied front pews.

No reference was made to the work of the commission, and only in a most general way could the sermon be made applicable thereto.

The commission will remain in their sleeping car tonight. They will be met in the morning at Pond Creek, about nine miles north of Hazleton, by Thomas Duffy, president of this district of the mine workers' union, who will represent the miners. General Superintendent Warriner of the Lehigh Valley and General Superintendent Richards of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Company, will represent the operators.

The mines which the commission will visit have not yet been decided upon. Superintendent Warriner of the Lehigh Valley Company has suggested the No. 40 shaft, operated by his company. The miners prefer to have the arbitrators inspect the Harwood colliery of C. Pardee & Co. There are 25 mines in the Hazleton region and all but No. 40 shaft are entered by means of a slope. The Harwood is a typical mine of that region, and as the commission have thus far only visited mines with shafts and have not yet gone down a slope, the miners think they should select the Harwood. The commissioners on Saturday requested both sides to agree on one mine, and if they fail the commission will probably decide the matter.

A STRANGER'S DEATH.

Man Who Said He Had Been Assaulted Dies at West Penn Hospital.

Patrick O'Neil, a stone cutter, aged 62, died at the West Penn hospital yesterday of traumatic pneumonia. He was sent there Saturday by City Physician Booth, on whom he called at the office of the bureau of health and complained of pains in the side and back.

He said he had been assaulted and robbed of a watch last Tuesday night in Water street and that he had been locked up in Central station afterward. Dr. Booth could find no injury on him, but sent him to the hospital. He gave his residence as 291 Hartford avenue, Baltimore, Md.

of the public works department and official representative of the city administration, should issue statements for publication, denying the charges that breaks or leaks had been discovered in the reservoir.

Notwithstanding his assertion of the previous day that three leaks had been discovered in the reservoir, Director McCandless signed a statement, which he gave to the press, stating that the streams found issuing from the outer surface of the embankment came from natural springs and not from the leaking of the water in the basin.

Director McCandless declared that the new reservoir was a fine piece of engineering work and substantial in every respect.

The statement of the contractors is signed by Peter Ridge and Joseph Keeling, and is as follows:

Contractors' Statement.

The published statements today that there are leaks in the Highland reservoir No. 2 are absolutely without foundation and we challenge any person to show by personal inspection that the reservoir is defective. What are alleged to be leaks—or breaks—are natural springs which have been there for years, and are found in the natural formations, and so far removed from the reservoir embankments as to leave no doubt as to the source of their water supply. There is no trace of escaping water in any part of the embankment, and we denounce the published statements that the reservoir is in any way defective as being maliciously false.

The discovery of the leaks is likely to lead to an investigation by the councils, in the event of the city administration attempting to take the reservoir off the hands of the contractors without having the defects repaired. Director McCandless has stated that the reservoir will be ready to be turned over to the city on November 15, about 10 days after the election.

The contractors will be compelled to wait, however, until the supreme court renders a decision upon the appeal of Controller Larkin before they can draw their money, even should the decision be in their favor.

SUPT. DEMMEL MAKES REPORT AND SIX DETECTIVES ARE DISCHARGED

the city's service for many years. They have been faithful servants politically—that is of the machine J. O. Brown assumes to run—leaving entirely out of the question their service from an executive viewpoint. Two of them are old soldiers and it is recalled in this connection that Gov. Stone's order to Recorder J. O. Brown, recorded in the famous postscript, were that in all instances where old soldiers are removed from office their places must be filled by men who fought for the flag in the sixties. In these last moments, when the ringsters are vainly endeavoring to "avert the disaster," this edict of Stone is being disobeyed.

Old Soldiers Fired.

William Shore and William Bradley, two of the men Brown has ordered Demmel to behead forthwith, have brilliant soldier records. They served through the war of the rebellion. The man who has been instructed to swing the ax was a comrade in the army. If Stone's orders mean anything it is either up to Recorder Brown to rescind the order of dismissal of Shore and Bradley, or appoint in their places two men who served in the Union army.

This morning an attempt will be made by the discharged detectives to see Recorder Brown and secure some explanation. The detectives are unanimous in their censure of Demmel and say that when he made his statements before the committee on salary revision that he made tools of them to save his own reputation for efficiency.

Says Demmel Is Incapable.

They charge that Demmel has been most incapable as a manager and director; that he has failed to direct their movements as he should have done, and that he is now making an attempt to save his head politically by throwing the blame on them.

The detectives further say that the vacancies created by the removals are almost certain to be filled by men from the ranks of the uniformed police, and that John McAleese, the superintendent of the police bureau, and not Demmel, will be the man who will make these appointments. They charge that McAleese has been interfering with the detective bureau for some time, and that Demmel has followed the instructions of McAleese blindly.

McGovern's Hot Statement.

When seen at his home last night Detective Charles McGovern made the following written statement:

Pittsburgh, November 3, 1902.

Editor of The Gazette.

Dear Sir—I fully anticipated the disposition made of my case. When I became acquainted with Superintendent Demmel's methods he bitterly and unwarrantedly opposed me. He has not given me an assignment in six months. He is unworthy of the position he holds. I am ready to give City Recorder J. O. Brown the facts to sustain my statement.

Very truly,
CHARLES MCGOVERN.

McGovern also said that he would insist that a councilmanic investigation of the work of the bureau of detectives for the past six months be made.

Trouble Is Promised.

"This morning I will go to Recorder Brown and demand to know if what Demmel said about me was his motive for authorizing my dismissal," said McGovern last night. "If he says that was his motive I will have the councilman of my ward insist that an investigation be made by a committee of councils."

"I have been a faithful servant for the department since 1898. In that time I have been wounded and injured while in performance of my duties. I was never insubordinate and I have always performed my duties to the best of my ability."

McGovern was appointed on the police force in 1895 by J. O. Brown, who was at that time director of the department of public works. In 1898 he served with the Fourteenth regiment in the Spanish-American war. When his regiment was mustered out he was appointed on the detective bureau by Director Brown and has since served in that capacity.

Helped Capture Biddle.

He has made a number of clever arrests, including the capture of the Biddle brothers, who escaped from the Allegheny county jail. He also arrested James Robinson, alias "Mouse" Robinson, who was making his escape in Fifth avenue after stealing a tray of diamonds in Siedle's jewelry store in Market street, during December, 1899. He has always been considered a courageous officer. Detective McGovern is regimental adjutant of the Fourteenth regiment, and has just returned from the coal regions.

William Shore was appointed as a detective from civil life in 1884, and has served in the department since that time. Shore has a splendid civil war record, belongs to the Grand Army of the Republic and is a member of the Union Veteran legion. His friends among the old soldiers include some of the most prominent citizens of Allegheny county. When seen last night Shore refused to make any statement with reference to his removal.

Had Not Warmed His Seat.

Thomas Malley was appointed on the police force 14 years ago. After serving a short time he was brought into the department as a pawn ticket clerk and served in that position until one month ago, when he was appointed to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Detective Bernard McStay. He has been ill for the past two weeks and unable to report for duty. When seen last night he said that he had been working in the interest of his party in the Twenty-third ward and was at a loss to know why he should be dismissed almost at the beginning of his appointment.

Detective William McElroy was appointed on the detective force six years ago. He served on the police force for eight years previous to his promotion to the detective bureau. He is at a loss to know why he was removed.

Detective William Bradley has been identified with the police department for about five years. He is a brother of John Bradley, chief clerk in the county prothonotary's office, and before entering the police service held a clerical position in the court house for a number of years in the register's office.

Old Cavalryman Fired.

Bradley was appointed inspector of the First district under J. O. Brown, director of public safety, and after serving about two years in the First district was transferred to the South Side district, where he remained until removed for alleged political activity by Recorder A. M. Brown.

This was shortly before Maj. Brown was succeeded by J. O. Brown as recorder. Thomas J. Morley of the South Side succeeded Bradley as inspector. When J. O. Brown was appointed recorder by Gov. Stone he reappointed Bradley inspector, and later transferred him to the detective bureau. He has served on the detective bureau about a year. He served throughout the civil war as a cavalryman and has a fine record as a soldier.

Harry Jones is the son of Evan Jones, select councilman from the Thirty-sixth ward, and his appointment to the detective bureau last April is said to have been a reward given to his father for voting for the re-election of John S. Lamble as president of select council. He was formerly an inspector in the department of public works.

MACHINE TRYING TO INTIMIDATE--POLICE TOLD WHAT TO DO

MACHINE PLOT TO INTIMIDATE

Conspiracy Is Known to Citizens and Cannot Succeed Tuesday.

VOTERS ON THEIR GUARD

Misquotation of Law in Circulars Mailed to Voters Is Exposed. Haymaker's Name Was Signed. Ring Desperate.

The ring conspiracy to intimidate voters by misrepresenting the law regarding tax receipts is in full swing. As predicted in The Gazette yesterday, circulars have been sent out by the machine, in pursuance of that object. Every one of the voters, who received their tax receipts through the Citizens party's headquarters, got a circular by mail yesterday, containing warnings from the county delinquent tax collector, and ostensibly from John C. Haymaker, the district attorney.

Whether Mr. Haymaker really signed the circular or whether his name was forged cannot at this writing be determined, but as Delinquent Tax Collector Conner, in court, the other day, pulled some forged tax orders out of his pocket and attempted to fasten them on the Citizens party, which then by two witnesses proved that the forged tax order had not been received by Conner from the Citizens party, it would not be unlikely, it is declared, if Haymaker's name to the circular was appended without his knowledge.

Mr. Haymaker knows the law, which is quoted below, and it is deemed impossible that he would sign his name to a deliberate lie. In the printed circular his name is appended to a lie.

Conner Makes His Bluff.

The circular is issued, according to the heading, from the office of Conner. The part signed by Conner reads as follows:

"Dear Sir—I have evidence in my office showing that bogus tax receipts were issued by the Citizens party at the late city election. If you have any doubt that the receipt in your possession is genuine or not, I respectfully invite you to bring it to my office for comparison with the books of the county.

"It will be noticed that Conner says that bogus tax receipts were issued at the 'late city election.' For more than a month the Citizens party has been getting tax receipts from Conner, until finally fully 5,200 have been turned over by him to the Citizens party, for voters who signed bona fide tax orders. For a month, the ring has been asking voters to let Conner inspect these tax receipts. Some of the holders were foolish enough to scare at the bluff and called on Conner, only to find that their receipts were genuine, for not a single tax receipt received from an agent of the Citizens party was found to be bogus.

Citizens Receipts Are Genuine.

James W. Clark, secretary of the Citizens party's executive committee, whose reputation for fairness and veracity is at least as good as Conner's, solemnly assures every receipt holders that every one of the delinquent tax receipts obtained for this election from the Citizens party's headquarters was a tax receipt secured from Conner's office, so that if any of them bear an appearance of being ungenuine, that appearance must have been imparted to them in the court house, which is under the control of the ring.

Mr. Clark further says that every man voting on one of these receipts, no matter what Conner or his clerks may say about them, will be amply protected in his rights and will be defended at law by the Citizens party against all high-handed attempts to deprive him of his right to vote or to scare him into believing that his liberty is endangered.

On the circular, below the warning signed by Conner, is the following, signed by "John C. Haymaker, district attorney," and entitled, "The Law:"

Law Is Misquoted.

"If the voter is 22 years of age or upwards he himself must have paid within two years a state or county tax which shall have been assessed at least two months, and paid at least one month before election.

Voting or attempting to vote without the payment of such tax within two years is a crime under the laws of Pennsylvania, and is punishable by fine and imprisonment.

"That is the interpretation of the law alleged to have been made by District Attorney Haymaker. The law as it really is, is found in the "Laws of the general assembly of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, session of 1897, page 276, No. 218." It is entitled "an act to prohibit the payment of any occupation or poll tax, assessed for state or county purposes of any elector, by any person other than the elector, against whom such tax is assessed, except upon the signed order of such assessed elector, and prescribing penalties."

Orders Are Lawful.

Section 1 says: "That from and after the passage of this act, it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to pay or cause to be paid any occupation or poll tax, assessed against any elector, except on the written or signed order of such elector, authorizing such payment to be made, which written and signed order must be presented at least 30 days prior to the date of holding the election, at which such elector desires to vote."

Was Aimed at Machine.

This act was passed in 1897, and no law changing it has been passed since. It provides that it shall be unlawful for John Jones, for example, to pay or cause to be paid the tax assessed against John Smith, unless said John Smith has by a signed order authorized Jones to pay his tax. In former days the machine frequently paid the tax of voters who were opposed to it. When this man went to pay his own tax he found that it had been paid, but as the collector refused to make a duplicate, and the original was in the possession of the ring, the voter could not cast his ballot, for he had no tax receipt.

To prevent such tricks in the future the act was devised, so that now nobody is allowed to pay a tax for another man, unless that man has authorized him to do so. The Citizens party, by signed order, was authorized to pay the taxes by more than 5,000 electors, and it secured receipts for that number.

Report All Intimidation.

The ring election overseers and watchers have been instructed by the attorney for the ring, John P. Hunter, to ask the holders of these receipts if they paid the tax "themselves." The proper answer to give to such a question is "It is none of your business," and it can be done safely, for the possession of the receipt entitles the holder to vote.

If the overseer persists and declares that the voter may not cast his ballot, because he did not pay the tax himself, the Citizens party requests that the fact be reported to the Citizens and Democracy's lawyers, who will be in attendance at their respective headquarters. The overseer will then be arrested for intimidation, and it is the intention of the fusion forces to see that he gets the full penalty of the law.

Is Easily Exposed.

Citizens party and Democratic voters are cautioned not to be intimidated if they receive a circular today or tomorrow declaring that Judge R. S. Frazer has said it is illegal or unconstitutional to vote on a tax receipt obtained on a tax order. They are also warned not to be intimidated or scared if a circular is received declaring that a "printed" tax order is not a legal authorization to obtain a tax receipt. Such an order, if signed by the man who is named in the tax receipt is legal, but if it were illegal then Samuel P. Connor and his clerks, for issuing a tax receipt on such an order, are liable on conviction to a term of imprisonment of not more than six months or by a fine of $200, according to the law just granted.

The circular issued by Connor reminded Citizens party leaders of a similar circular issued at the spring election. At that time the ring flooded the city with circulars, stating that it was a crime for anybody to attempt to vote without a tax receipt. This palpable falsehood so enraged the voters that they came out in droves, swamped the ring, elected John B. Larkin controller and gave the Citizens party a majority in common council.

Republicans by voting for Pennypacker and the Citizens ticket will knock out the Flinn ring at both ends of the line. Advt.

HOW VOTERS MAY HEAR THE ELECTION RETURNS

Four Political Organizations to Receive and Announce Result of the Ballot.

The four political organizations of the county have arranged to receive the returns of the balloting on election night. The Citizens party arrangements and those of the machine are somewhat elaborate.

The Citizens party adherents will be able to hear the glad news at the headquarters in Third avenue. Telegraph instruments will be put in, and both telephones will be provided, with operators, who will stand at the instruments that the returns may not be delayed. Returns will also be received at the Citizens headquarters in the Twentieth ward.

Several telegraph instruments are to be placed in the Sixth avenue auditorium. There the adherents of the ring will hear the sad news as it comes over the wires from all parts of the county. Spellbinders will be on hand to encourage the drooping spirits of the faithful.

The Democrats will receive and tabulate the returns at their headquarters in Diamond street, whither the Democratic ward chairmen and committeemen will send the results in their districts. From there the returns will be telephoned to the hall in the Mellon building, Fifth avenue and Smithfield street, formerly occupied by the Elks. It is a big room, and several hundred men can hear the returns comfortably. No announcements will be made at the headquarters.

W. J. Burke of the Ballot Reform party said last night that the ballot reformers would also have an opportunity to hear the returns early, but the place where they would be received had not yet been selected.

Some of the clubs will receive returns and at all the theaters important results will be read between the acts. The newspapers will, as usual, announce returns in front of their respective offices.

ONLY ELECTION OFFICERS CAN HANDLE YOUR TAX RECEIPT.

"I am informed that the ring, at its headquarters today, instructed its watchers that they have the right to handle tax receipts offered by the electors at the polls on election day," said James W. Clark, secretary of the Citizens party's county committee, last night.

"I hope no voter will be fooled into allowing unauthorized persons to handle his tax receipt, perhaps to destroy or steal it.

"Nobody has a right to inspect tax receipts except the overseers, the judge of elections and the minority inspector. There would be no objection to letting the entire election board see the receipts, but nobody else about the polls should be permitted to take them into his hands. Otherwise the receipts may disappear and the elector be deprived of his vote."

DECLARATIONS BY CANDIDATES

Legislative Nominees of Citizens-Democrats Speak in Plain Terms.

WILL WORK FOR REFORM

Pledge Signed by Candidates Sets Forth in No Uncertain Terms the Evils It Is Desired to Remedy.

Every nominee on the Citizens-Democratic ticket for the state senate, in the Forty-second and Forty-fourth districts, and for the lower house of the general assembly in the eight legislative districts of Allegheny county, in order that there may be no basis whatever for any attempted misrepresentation of their position on important public matters, have pledged themselves to honestly and zealously support the following policies in the event of their election:

First—We favor the passage of a ballot reform bill that will give the greatest freedom to the elector to vote his individual opinion; that will dispose of the cumbersome and unnecessary blanket ballot, and will do away with the existing legal technicalities surrounding nominations which are intended to prevent the popular will from being expressed.

Personal Registration Advocated.

Second—We favor the enactment at the earliest possible date of a law requiring personal registration, and also a bill which will do away with the system of jobbing in tax receipts so notorious in Allegheny county.

Third—We favor the enactment of a law providing for the nomination of candidates by all parties, by popular vote, under the safe-guarding primary elections in the matter of officials, so that there will be no private inspection of ballots after a primary election, and that a fair and honest count shall be had.

Fourth—We favor the restitution of the new charter for cities of second class to as near its original form as is possible, for all of the cities concerned, and pledge ourselves earnestly endeavor to secure this result at the earliest possible time during the next legislative session.

Fifth—We favor the enactment of a law that will provide for the publication of all the proceedings of the salary board of Allegheny county and of doing away with the county controller as a member of said board. We also favor a law making it compulsory for a county controller to print in full the names and salaries of public officials in all the offices of the county.

New Jury Law Wanted.

Sixth—We favor the enactment of a law covering the administration of the good roads act of 1836 that will do away with the employment of political "heelers" as the inspectors and supervisors of work done on public roads, believing that in this way the opportunity for corruption and for fraud upon the public would be materially lessened.

Seventh—We favor an immediate reconstruction of the laws governing the selection of the juries of Allegheny county so as to provide for a proportionate representation from all sections of the county, as well as to prevent the putting into the wheel the names of those who cannot be found. We believe that this bulwark of the liberty of our people should be immediately surrounded with all of the safeguards that can be given.

Eighth—We favor the enactment of a law which will empower the councils of any city to investigate charges of bribery or other crimes made against any of its members; to compel the attendance of witnesses, and imposing penalties for refusing to testify and committing false testimony in such case perjury.

This pledge is signed by John M. Goehring and W. S. Woods, the candidates in the two senatorial districts, and by Joseph J. Gilchrist, Joseph Stewart Powell, John M. Francies, B. F. Anderson, S. H. Mawhinney, William J. Ryan, John B. Yeilig, W. U. Willet, Benjamin Weaver, Henry Nichols, W. M. Beck, R. H. Heath, George T. Owens, B. F. Mevay, Jr., and Samuel G. Bailey, the candidates in the legislative districts.

M'ALEESE REFUSED TO ADMIT COUNCILMAN

Harry Lamb Demanded Privilege of Seeing a Prisoner in Police Station.

Superintendent of Police John McAleese and Councilman Harry A. Lamb of the Eleventh ward had an angry argument in the Public Safety building last night over the demand of Councilman Lamb to see a prisoner in No. 2 police station. Lamb complained that the sergeant at the station had denied him the privilege of seeing a prisoner, notwithstanding the fact that he was a member of the city councils and presented a police card.

Supt. McAleese told the councilman that it was against the rule to admit any person to interview prisoners, except upon an order from himself, the director of the department, or an inspector. Lamb was indignant and declared he would show the superintendent that councilmen had rights which the superintendent could not override.

McAleese retorted that councilmen were no better than any person else. Finally the superintendent told Lamb to go back to No. 2 station and that he would telephone to the sergeant and instruct him to admit Lamb. The superintendent called up over the 'phone and learned that the prisoner had been committed upon an information from the detective bureau, charging him with stealing a dog. Supt. McAleese thereupon instructed the sergeant not to admit Lamb.

PRETENSE OF LOYALTY THOROUGHLY EXPOSED

Flinn's Conference With Ring Candidates Proves Citizens Charges of Treachery.

All of the machine's protestations of loyalty to the Republican state ticket fell to the ground yesterday when the Republicans of Pittsburgh read of the conference held between William Flinn and some of the candidates on the machine congressional, legislative and county tickets, in Flinn's office in the rooms of the Wheeling Natural Gas Company and adjoining the headquarters of the "Ballot Reform or Grimes' Muddy Water" party and which was fully illustrated by the use of a diagram in The Gazette.

The candidates of the machine have been asserting, with might and main, that the accusation that they contemplate betraying the Republican state candidates is false; that they have no political association with Flinn; that Flinn is entirely out of their organization, and that they are not partners in his Ballot Reform party. They have vociferously asserted that Flinn is not the real power in the so-called Republican organization, and they have backed up their former city chairman in his denials that he is still the ruling spirit in the city committee, or that he secretly, without the connivance of Chairman A. C. Robertson, controls the machine county committee.

And yet on Saturday afternoon, only three days before the election, the following machine nominees were in close communion with Flinn and J. F. Grimes, the former the private and the latter the public master of the Ballot Reform party; Dr. A. J. Barchfeld, congressional candidate; T. G. McClure, county treasurer and candidate for re-election, and E. G. Swartzwelder, councilman and legislative candidate. With them were John A. Murphy, select councilman from the Twentieth ward; James W. Platt, select councilman from the Second ward; A. H. Edwards, city meat and milk inspector, and Jesse Pavey, a former city detective. The last named emerged from the conference wearing a Ballot Reform button and said "That's the ticket I am going to vote." A few minutes before the gathering broke up W. J. Burke, the active promoter of the Ballot Reform movement, was in conference with the crowd.

The facts brought forward are deemed sufficient proof of the charges of the Citizens party that instructions have been sent out through the county to ring workers to pass over the machine column in the official ballot and vote the Ballot Reform column, for in that column are the names of the Democratic state candidates and of the county, legislative and congressional candidates of the ring.

By voting the straight Citizens ticket voters will have the satisfaction of striking down both Republicans and Democratic ringsters. Advt.

CONDUCTOR DIES FROM HIS INJURIES

Stepped from Behind His Car in Front of One Going in Opposite Direction.

Patrick Dugan, a traction conductor, employed on the West End branch of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, died from injuries received while at work yesterday morning. He jumped off the rear of his car at the toll gate in Esplen borough and passing around the car to cross the street, stepped in front of car 54, running in the opposite direction.

He was knocked down and run over. His skull was fractured and both legs and one arm broken. He was taken to the McKees Rocks hospital where he died four hours later. He was single, 23 years old and lived in Esplen.

Walker Johnston, colored, aged about 45 and married, of Emsworth, was found dead on the river bank near his home yesterday morning.

While playing near a bonfire at his home at Fleming park, Saturday evening, the clothes of James Sibilia, the 3-year-old son of Steve Sibilia, caught fire and he was fatally burned.

John Brennan, 17 years old, died at the Homeopathic hospital Saturday from injuries received at the Mesta Machine Company's plant, West Homestead.

Robert Phillips of Imperial was killed by a train on the Montour railroad at North Star, on Saturday.

Z. G. Carmania, a brakeman on the Panhandle railroad, was run over by a train near Carnegie early yesterday morning and instantly killed. He was 26 years old and lived at Sheraden.

Mrs. Henry Milholland, 27 years old, of West Liberty, died suddenly early yesterday morning, after an illness of but a few hours.

BROWN WILL BE IN WATCH TOWER

Recorder to Direct Police Activity During Election Day.

OMINOUS PREPARATIONS

Indications Are That Ring Is Making Ready for Intimidation and Repeating—Disloyal Ones to Be Watched.

Recorder Brown is to mount the famous "watch tower" and will take personal charge of the work of the police in the various election districts of the city on Tuesday. He announced his intention in the orders for election day, sent to Supt. McAleese yesterday.

Action of this sort has not been common in the past and there is considerable excitement over the recorder's move. It is asserted that he was disappointed in the work done by the police department last February, and with his long experience as director of public safety to help him, thinks he can manage the force with better results for the machine ticket this time.

To Watch Suspects.

Another motive whispered among the force itself is that the recorder, knowing the disaffection that exists in the department and the strong Citizens sentiment that has sprung up all over the city, desires to be in a position on Tuesday where he can watch the men who are suspected of disloyalty to the ring and mark them for decapitation.

Recorder Brown has said that the unfaithful must go, and every point of disaffection must be rooted out in order that the city ring may make its last battle next February the most bitter in history.

On their face, the orders to the police are fair, but there is a false ring to many of the sentences and an open expectation of trouble and police interference at the polls that indicates an intention on the part of the machine to resort to its old tricks of intimidation and repeating. When it is remembered that all the tax receipts secured by the machine have been marked in a manner known only to the ring leaders, but to be told the machine election officers and watchers tonight, the preparations in the police orders for trouble over tax receipts have a sound that bodes ill for electing an honest or peaceable election.

Will Block Intimidation.

The Citizens, however, have made counter preparations, and if the wholesale intimidation, illegal voting and interference of the police that has characterized elections under ring auspices is tried this time the machine schemes will run into a beautiful checkmate. The police orders are as follows:

Pittsburgh, Nov. 1, 1902.

John McAleese, Esq.,
Superintendent Bureau of Police.

Dear Sir—Your instructions for election day are to have all police, including the subs, in full uniform; preserve the peace without reference to political parties; arrest all persons receiving or giving money for votes; arrest all persons receiving fraudulent tax receipts, or attempting to vote on fraudulent tax receipts, or parties issuing the same; arrest all parties repeating or attempting to repeat, and all persons leading or holding gangs of repeaters.

The responsibility of having the elections fair, peaceful and honest without regard to parties rests with you. A police magistrate will be detailed by me and on duty the entire day at the department of public safety building for the purpose of taking information, issuing warrants of arrest, and immediate fines, jail or workhouse commitments of all offenders against the election laws.

In the Watch-Tower.

I WILL BE WITH YOU IN PERSON THE ENTIRE DAY TO HELP ENFORCE THIS ORDER, and all policemen receiving or taking money will be immediately discharged. Very truly yours,

J. O. BROWN, City Recorder.

Supt. Demmel received the following letter:

Pittsburgh, Nov. 1, 1902.

Philip Demmel, Esq.,
Superintendent Bureau of Detectives.

Dear Sir—You are directed to have your detective bureau assist in preserving peace and good order on election day. To immediately arrest any person giving or receiving money for their votes; to arrest immediately any person voting, or attempting to vote on fraudulent tax receipts; arrest the party so attempting and the party giving the receipt.

A police magistrate will be on duty at the department of public safety building the entire day for the purpose of receiving complaints, receiving informations and issuing warrants of arrest. I want the elections to be fair, honest and peaceful without regard to party.

You will have your men properly divided and visit frequently every polling place in the city of Pittsburgh for the purpose of carrying out these instructions. Very truly yours,

J. O. BROWN, City Recorder.

MORE STRICTURES ON CONTROLLER THOMPSON

Chairman Evans Shows That Thompson's Reply Begs Questions Put to Him.

Dr. Cadwallader Evans, the chairman of the Citizens party's county committee, yesterday made a reply to the answer which Col. W. E. Thompson, the county controller, made to some of Dr. Evans's strictures on the financial management of the county. Dr. Evans says Col. Thompsons reply is the most remarkable defense ever put forth by a public officer. Dr. Evans continues: "Col. Thompson singles out two of my questions for answer, one about the sheriff's office, and the other about the prothonotary's, and the substance of the defense is that neither he, nor Mr. Grier ever held those offices, which is granted, and that there are always large fees due those offices and unpaid until the litigation is ended, which accounts for the increased cost. That was also true, while Mr. Grier was controller, and therefore, is no answer to my complaint of decreased receipts and increased pay rolls under Col. Thompson's administration, as compared with that of Mr. Grier.

"The colonel then says that the 'whole of my fusillade of questions are irrelevant and improper.' So it is 'irrelevant and improper' to ask why the pay roll brigade got $441,733 44 more in five years of Thompson's administration than in six years of Grier's; to ask why, with decreased profits of $96,124, 41 in the offices of four county officers, the salaries increased $57,551 80; to ask why all the increased receipts of the register's office, amounting to $10,402, and $167 54 additional were taken in salaries last year; to ask why the county government is costing $1,351 86 a day more than it did under Grier, or 52 per cent, and this in the face of the fact that the number of taxables and the taxable valuation have increased only 20 per cent.

"The colonel then takes shelter behind the opinion of the county court, in the case of the Mercantile Trust Company vs. City Controller John B. Larkin, now pending in the supreme court, saying that it 'applies to the powers and duties of the county controller,' in other words, conceding that he has been proceeding all these five years in anticipation of a decision that would deprive him of power."

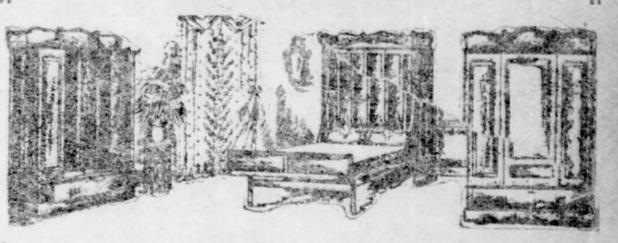
FOLDING BEDS

That Add a Room to the Home.



Combination Folding Beds

When one buys a Folding Bed, it's usually to save room by gaining more floor space during the day. But much of its convenience depends on the kind of bed you buy. To fully appreciate what is new in this line you must take the time to go through the stocks in this store. Prices start at $12.50 for a good Mantel Bed and run to $150 for the finest in the upright style.

THE COMBINATION BEDS are having a wonderful sale. Although they cost a little more than the mantel styles, they combine two or three pieces of useful furniture and occupy the floor space of one, and the bed itself is so cleverly concealed that one would hardly suspect the double service. The styles that have proven most popular combine a Folding Bed and a Wardrobe, a Dresser or a Sideboard. Others have Wardrobe and Desk; Wardrobe and Chiffonier or Bookcase and Desk. Designs here to suit almost any room.

THOUSANDS WENT TO SEE THE MUMS

Wonderful Flower Show at Phipps' Conservatory in Schenley Park.

OVER 50,000 WERE OUT

Crush Was So Great That All Could Not View the Show. Many Visitors from Out of Town.

It was grateful homage that Pittsburgh yesterday paid to the gorgeous chrysanthemum. The Phipps conservatory in Schenley park is the principal local shrine of the autumn flower, and 20,000 persons gazed in admiration at the magnificent display of the lordly blooms. Nearly every town within 100 miles of Pittsburgh was represented in the great throng, the people having taken advantage of the fall excursions. The number of visitors was limited by the accommodations of the conservatory and many did not obtain admission. Not less than 50,000 persons crowded Schenley park.

The line before the entrance of the conservatory extended to the bridge at the Carnegie library. It was a merry, good-natured throng, and throughout the day there was no semblance of disorder. The people moved deliberately through the winding paths of the big greenhouse where they found the blossoms at their best, standing in seemingly endless rows, nodding their heads majestically as if conscious of the praise and wonder of the visitors.

Sentiment in Names.

The most of the new varieties were conspicuous among the beauties. Among those that received the most attention was the unique specimens of the green-flowered blooms named for Mme. E. Rogers. Green chrysanthemums are a novelty here, and few had ever been seen by some of the most enthusiastic flower-lovers who yesterday inspected the exhibit. The rich dark crimson varieties also came in for great praise. These are the James Shrimpton and the Mrs. A. J. Drexel.

"What is the name of that perfectly splendid pink purple bloom over there?" asked a young woman visitor of Superintendent William Falconer.

"That is called the Mrs. Higginbotham," replied Mr. Falconer.

"What a ridiculous name for such a gorgeous flower. There is the Lavender Queen, the Orizaba, the Mermaid and the Mavourneen which I think are prettier names. Who christens them?"

"Perhaps if we knew the history of that name it would not sound so strange," replied Mr. Falconer. "The culturists grow these plants from seedlings, and after they are inspected by the National Chrysanthemum society of America and receive over 80 points, the name is registered. No doubt this plant was named in honor of a friend or relative of the grower. There is much delicate sentiment behind the names of some of the chrysanthemums, you see."

Great Show of New Varieties.

Among the large yellows are some especially fine specimens of the Golden Wedding, the Solar Queen and the Nine. Carnot. The best of the pure white chrysanthemums are the Cecil Wray, the Nellie Pockitt, the Niveus and the Mrs. F. A. Constable. The number of new varieties this year is exceptionally large. The average life of the cultivated chrysanthemums is about 10 years. In the cultivation of the flower the Chrysanthemum society is constantly approaching nearer perfection and the specimens that were popular a decade ago are now far eclipsed by the new ones grown recently.

Next Sunday the freaks of this season's growth will be placed on exhibition in the conservatory. Among these will be several green flowered specimens like those used in China and Japan for salads. Chrysanthemums with frilled heads, and chrysanthemums with thread-like petals will be among the curiosities.

Other Attractions for Sight-Seers.

Those who avoided the crowd at the conservatory enjoyed pleasant rambles through the park or sat on the benches and watched the automobiles and the fine turnouts that filled the driveways. Panther Hollow never looked more beautiful. The forest trees have now taken on the seer tints of late autumn, and the atmosphere of the deep backwoods pervaded the solitudes of the valley.

The organ recital in the Carnegie Music hall was an attraction for 3,000 persons. Edward Napier presided at the organ and all his selections were received with enthusiasm. In the audience the majority were from the country and had never heard the big instrument. They were enraptured by the sweet melody from the mammoth pipes and lingered until after the close of the recital, hoping that other numbers would be played.

The crowd at the private conservatories of H. C. Frick, at Penn and Homewood avenues, exceeded 3,000. Many country visitors inspected the private chrysanthemum show also, and found Mr. Frick's specimens at their best.

Highland park is to be beautified by 800 forest trees, which were planted on its sheer hillsides last week. At the Highland avenue entrance and at the flower garden at the zoo $1,400 bulbs have been planted for next year's blooming.

NEW BANK BUYS HOME AT 5FTH AND ELM

Washington National Drops Fifth Ave. Options and Splits Stock Issue.

Business men along Fifth and Wylie avenues and the intersecting streets, mostly below the Fifth Avenue High school, who are forming the Washington National bank, have allowed the options held on a majority of the stock of the Fifth Avenue bank to lapse and have purchased their own banking property at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and Elm street. This is the Oaks building, a substantial brick structure of three stories erected only a few years ago. The building has a frontage of 20 feet in Fifth avenue and a depth of 120 feet.

A new front will be put in and the first floor equipped so that the bank may open for business by December 1.

In passing its opportunity to take over the Fifth Avenue bank and occupy the building of that institution at Fifth avenue and Stephenson street, the stockholders of the Washington National bank decided to limit the initial stock issue to $250,000, instead of $500,000, as intended when the project of a consolidation was on. The new bank will start with a surplus of $25,000. It is to be largely an institution for the many business men of that section of the city, who are its shareholders.

Most of the stock for a $500,000 capitalization had been subscribed when the plan to take over the Fifth Avenue bank was dropped, and as a consequence the subscribers will get a low percentage of their subscriptions under the necessary allotment.

The new bank is the one it was first proposed to institute as the Fifth Avenue National bank. Among the heavier shareholders of the bank, and who have acted as a committee in its formation, are Charles Ruben of Solomon & Ruben; J. F. Ahlberg, president of the Hunt Foundry & Machine Company; Dr. A. Blumberg, C. L. Young, the Fifth avenue druggist; S. Abels, the Fifth avenue clothing merchant; Benjamin L. Hirshfield, the attorney, and M. J. Dain, who promoted the bank's formation. Mr. Dain held the options on the majority of the stock of the Fifth Avenue bank for the new Washington National bank. Some of these options already lapsed by limitation.

A deal which was being negotiated some time ago for a consolidation of the Fort Pitt, Fourth and Fifth National banks has been dropped.

CUBAN CHILDREN HELD.

Important Question to Be Settled Through Bringing Urchins to the United States.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The board of special inquiry at Ellis Island adjourned today without taking up the case of the 11 Cuban children who came here Saturday on steamer Orizaba, destined for Point Loma, Cal., to be educated and cared for at the "farm" of the "Universal Brotherhood," conducted under the direction of Mrs. Katherine Tingley. The children are detained on the island, and Dr. Gertrude Van Pelt, in whose charge they came from Santiago, is with them.

Commissioner Williams said today that the case of the children opens up an important question which will probably be used to establish a precedent in the matter of the admission of Cuban children to this country for the purpose of education. The technical point on which the children will be deported, if the board decides to debar them, he says, will be that they are liable to become a public charge.

THE LAST FAREWELL.

Brothers Come Long Distance to See Dead Parent.

William H. and Herbert Sharp, sons of the late Thomas W. Sharp, formerly burgess of Braddock, arrived Saturday from Needles, Cal. They came to Braddock to take a farewell look at the face of their dead father, who died a week ago.

Mr. Sharp's remains were placed in the Mills' receiving vault in Monongahela cemetery until the sons could arrive. Another brother, Mark A. Sharp, is prospecting in New Mexico, and word of his father's death has not yet reached him. When the sons had viewed the body it was removed to Braddock cemetery, North Braddock, and interred in the family plot.

Keeping down the millage by resorting to extravagant valuations is a ring trick. Vast sums of the people's money are being spent for inferior service just the same. When the Citizens party candidates are in office the taxpayers will get full value for the taxes. Advt.

"Chronic Weakness"

Neither Sick Nor Well.

A Distinguished Medical Editor Tells How Many Are Subject to Semi-Starvation or an Habitually Half-Fed Condition Because Their Stomachs Won't Work.

A Way to Cure "Chronic Starvation" and Its Attendant Weaknesses and Disabilities is Pointed Out.

An editorial in the October, 1901, issue of the Medical Brief, a journal published by and for physicians and having the largest circulation of any strictly professional medical publication in the world, says:—

"There are many patients who have nothing organically wrong with them, but are kept in a weak, anemic state by a lack of digestive power. If we can improve digestion we increase their energy, productive output, and sense of well being."

"For this class of cases, alcoholics and strong bitters often do more harm than good, while they temporarily stimulate and improve the appetite, if long used they bring on a reaction worse than the first state. Gastric catarrh is likely to follow their prolonged use from constant and artificial congestion of the gastric mucous membrane."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the proper remedy for this condition. Being in tablet form they are not only convenient to carry and take but are necessarily free from all alcoholics and the objectionable stimulating drugs do not enter into their composition.

Every organ and tissue of the body depends on the stomach for nourishment and renewal that will prepare them to satisfactorily perform their functions and resist disease. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not simply stimulate but they tone, strengthen and build up the stomach, make it active and capable of converting food into pure rich blood that will fully feed the half-starved tissues so they will develop into full-functioned perfection.

There are many remedies on the market for impaired or perverted digestion but none are so safe, so economical, so convenient, so effective, so popular, as are Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Whether one dyspepsia is of long standing or is merely a case of temporary indigestion, they give prompt and pronounced relief. Their continued use will cure all forms of digestive inefficiency.

By promoting perfect digestion Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets promote pure blood, sound and healthy flesh, strong nerves; make the eyes bright, the skin clear, the mind cheerful, the sleep natural and restful. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are easily and cheaply obtained for they are sold at all drug stores at 50 cents a box.

Write to F. A. Stuart Co, Marshall, Mich., for their book on stomach diseases. It is free; a postal card will bring it; send one to-day.

AN ORDINANCE—To Authorize and direct the proper officer or officers in the name and on behalf of the city of Allegheny, to enter into and execute a contract with the Western Pennsylvania Railroad Company, a corporation under the laws of the state of Pennsylvania, and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, a like corporation, whereby said Western Pennsylvania Railroad Company may change and elevate a part of the line of its railroad within the limits of the said city.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the city of Allegheny, its select and common councils assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the proper officer or officers of the said city be and are hereby authorized to execute in the name and on behalf of the city of Allegheny to enter into and execute a contract with the Western Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in the following form, to-wit:

CONTRACT.

This agreement made this..... day of ..... A. D. one thousand nine hundred and two, between the city of Allegheny, (hereinafter called the "city"), as first party, and the Western Pennsylvania Railroad Company, a corporation under the laws of the state of Pennsylvania (hereinafter called "railroad company"), as second party, and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, a like corporation, lessee of said Western Pennsylvania Railroad Company and joining herein to express its consent to the making of this contract (hereinafter called "lessee"), as third party, Witnesseth:

Whereas, The railroad of the said railroad company enters the limits of the said city and the tracks of the said railroad within the limits of said city are laid across a number of public streets at grade, and

Whereas, The said railroad company contemplates a change of a portion of its said railroad by elevating its tracks in such manner as to reduce the number of grade crossings and thereby secure the safety of lives and property and promote the interests of said city, and the said city, deeming said change and elevation and reduction of grade crossings resulting therefrom adapted to secure and promote the best interests of the city and of the public, is willing that such change be made; and

Whereas, The said city has heretofore, by written agreement, given its consent to the Pennsylvania Company, operating the railway of the Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Railway Company, to relocate, change, elevate and depress its said railroad in said city, between McClure avenue and the Allegheny river bridge; and

Whereas, In and by said recited agreement between the city and the Pennsylvania Company, more particularly in the twentieth and twenty-first paragraphs thereof, provision is made that the tracks of the railroad company shall be raised to an elevation corresponding to that provided in said contract for the tracks of the Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Railway Company, crossing Anderson and Sandusky streets, and that the said Railroad company should never construct any track or tracks at any grade other than that fixed by the said contract at Anderson street or Sandusky street, or any street west thereof;

NOW THIS AGREEMENT WITNESSETH:

First. The said city hereby assents and agrees that the said railroad company may change the grade of its tracks between a point about two hundred (200) feet east of Bridge street and the eastern line or side of Federal street, as follows:

Gradually ascending from the point first above mentioned, and proceeding westwardly, the tracks shall cross Bridge street at eight tenths (0.8) of a foot above the present grade;

Still ascending, said tracks shall cross McFadden street on a bridge of iron or steel, at an elevation of seven (7) feet above the present grade of Mcfadden street.

Still ascending, and proceeding westwardly, the tracks shall cross over Pine street, at an elevation above the present grade of said Pine street to give a minimum clearance of twelve (12) feet, to under side of bridge; and shall cross over Sycamore street with a minimum clearance of thirteen (13) feet above the present grade, and over Chestnut street with a minimum clearance of twelve and four-tenths (12.4) feet above the present grade, and over Madison avenue with a minimum clearance of thirteen (13) feet above the present grade and shall connect with the tracks of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railway Company, as elevated under the above recited agreement with the city, at or near the western end of the present freight station of the railroad company, crossing Anderson and Sandusky streets to the eastern line of Federal street with a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

KEYSTONE STATE SOLID IN REPUBLICAN COLUMN, THOUGH BOTH CLAIM IT

Pennypacker Makes a Host of Friends in Tour of State.

GOOD RESULTS WITH FARMERS

They Like Plain, Straightforward Statements of Philadelphia Jurist.

OLD INSURGENTS IN LINE

From The Gazette's staff correspondent, who accompanied Judge Pennypacker on his tour.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Ledger Building, PHILADELPHIA, PA., Nov. 2.

With rousing rallies in Delaware and Chester counties and in this city, the Republican candidate for governor, Samuel W. Pennypacker, last night closed a strenuous and remarkably successful seven weeks' campaign, during which he spoke in 38 counties, including every congressional and senatorial district, and made about 50 speeches.

While some counties were necessarily missed, so far as speech-making was concerned, nearly every county was traversed by the candidate, and meetings were held at important centers, where residents of adjoining counties could attend.

The counties in which the candidate for governor addressed regular formal meetings were Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Bedford, Blair, Bradford, Bucks, Berks, Butler, Clearfield, Chester, Cambria, Center, Clinton, Crawford, Dauphin, Delaware, Erie, Fayette, Franklin, Huntingdon, Lawrence, Lycoming, Lackawanna, Lebanon, Luzerne, Lehigh, Montgomery, Mercer, McKean, Northampton, Northumberland, Philadelphia, Susquehanna, Somerset, Venango, Westmoreland and Wyoming. He made four speeches in Philadelphia, and two each in Fayette, Lawrence, Bradford, Westmoreland, Montgomery, Delaware, Chester, Center and Lehigh.

Just a Homelike Visit.

Considering the fact that it has been a plain, simple visit of a candidate to various counties to look into the faces of the voters and let them see the manner of man he is, it has been a remarkable campaign. Absolutely devoid of rhetorical fireworks, entirely lacking in the oratorical effects that enthuse an audience, indulging only in plain, simple facts in a homely conversational way that one good citizen would talk to another, ignoring the abuse of the Democratic campaign orators, except by good-naturedly ridiculing them with some quaint and humorous story— the Republican candidate for governor has made a favorable impression wherever he has spoken, and his clear, forcible manner has impressed his audiences with the importance of sustaining the policies and the administration of President Roosevelt. This has been especially so in the agricultural districts, where the ex-judge, who is somewhat of a farmer himself, made a host of friends, and it is only fair to presume that the farmer vote, from which ex-Gov. Pattison drew such a large portion of his vote in 1890, will remain steadfast to the Republican principles.

Farmers Like His Talks.

At least that is the way the farmers talked in every important agricultural district visited, and had his tour of the state had no other result, the good impression he has created in the country districts would alone have been worth all the trouble of the campaign.

Of course, in a few counties local fights were encountered which encouraged the Democrats to hope for deals whereby votes could be traded for Pattison, but so far as could be learned there was little, if any, disaffection on the head of the Republican ticket. In the old insurgent centers there was every indication of harmonious action. Center county, for instance, where the factions had been in bitter strife since 1895, the greatest harmony prevailed and a large Republican majority was confidently predicted by leaders of both old factions. At one meeting in the county ex-Gov. Hastings presided, and eulogized both Judge Pennypacker and Senator Penrose. At the other Col. Wilbur F. Reeder presided and predicted a large majority for the whole Republican ticket, and working hand in hand with them were the old Quay leaders, Judge Love and John T. Hamilton, state secretary of agriculture.

Strike Settlement Helps.

In Huntingdon county the same condition of affairs was found, as it was in Bedford, Somerset, Westmoreland, Clearfield, Blair and Cambria, where the old insurgent element had practically got in line.

In the northern and western tier of counties talk of disaffection was met, and a reduced Republican vote was looked for by some of the leaders, but since the settlement of the coal strike, a great improvement in the outlook was manifest, and every reference to the action of the Pennsylvania senators and President Roosevelt in settling the strike was received with vigorous demonstrations of approval.

In the Democratic counties of Lehigh and Northampton the meetings rivaled any held in the Republican counties. There, as in Democratic Berks, the Republicans are as solid as concrete, while the Democrats, especially in Lehigh and Northampton, are divided by a bitter fight, and the Republican leaders in Lehigh expect the county to not only give a big majority for William H. Sowden for congress, but to give a majority for the Republican county ticket.

While he is not indulging in any figures, Judge Pennypacker is thoroughly satisfied with the outlook as he has observed it on his tour of the state. He told the voters of Delaware county last night that from what he saw and could learn, he believed that the other Republican counties of the state, like Delaware county, will give their regular Republican majority. Six thousand is the majority predicted for Delaware county by County Chairman Mathues.

Nothing in the history of Allegheny county so shocked the public sense of political morality as the Stone-Penrose deal for "mutual, political and business advantage." Vote the Citizens ticket as a protest against that kind of politics. Advt.

Pattison Met by Big Crowd and Takes Rosy View.

REALLY THINKS THAT HE CAN WIN

Says He Feels More Certain of Election Than on Previous Occasions.

CURIOSITY DRAWS FOR HIM

From The Gazette's staff correspondent, who accompanied Ex-Gov. Pattison on his tour.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Public Ledger Building, PHILADELPHIA, PA., Nov. 2.

Keen will be the disappointment of Robert E. Pattison when the votes of Tuesday's election are counted. Tonight he really believes that he has made a winning fight and victory will for a third time perch upon his gubernatorial banner.

In his wild rush through 63 of the 67 counties he has apparently misjudged the sentiment of the voters, and the knowledge of this will come with a crushing blow when the figures tell of the magnificent triumph achieved by Judge S. W. Pennypacker.

Pattison sums up the situation in this wise:

"I do not care to discuss figures but I believe that 1,000,000 votes will be polled in Pennsylvania on Tuesday, and of this number 500,000 will be cast for the Democratic ticket. In 1890 I received 464,-504. I believe that this time I will go to the city line of Philadelphia with a plurality of 100,000."

Even were it possible for the ex-governor to make good the extravagant claims of this day dream, he would still be short enough votes to elect. The rock bottom estimate of Judge Pennypacker's plurality in Philadelphia is placed at 125,000.

Farmers Are Against Him.

While Pattison may think that rural Pennsylvania is going to slide in his direction, he will find that his calculations have been wrong. There are many counties where he thinks a majority will be gotten for him that will return a safe margin for Pennypacker. In the last two weeks of the campaign there has been a mighty change. In that time counties have switched about entirely. The settlement of the coal strike by President Roosevelt and the speech of ex-President Grover Cleveland were two of the things which are responsible for an awakening among Republicans who, until that time, had been more or less, apathetic.

Added to this is the action of the Philadelphia Democracy. It has shown that it is not united for Pattison.

Gov. Pattison tells why he thinks he will win in the following statement:

"At the close of the campaign I am much more hopeful of success than I was at the conclusion of either of the successful canvasses made by me. There has been more public interest and more enthusiasm in this campaign. I do not base my calculations on the success of the many meetings we have held, but rather on the assurance from private sources in each of the localities visited. I could not wish for a more hopeful condition.

Can See No Blunders.

"I believe that we made no mistakes. I cannot recall a single blunder during the canvass. Every engagement was kept and only on a few occasions were we late in arriving at our destination. Nowhere were the people disappointed. In my opinion it has been the most thorough canvass ever made of the state. We visited 63 counties, and the only reason for not going into Tioga, Sullivan, Susquehanna and Pike was the lack of time. We had many requests for more meetings than we were able to address, and it would have been a physical impossibility for us to have increased our efforts. No where in the state have I found apathy among the Democrats and independents. We have made good government the one issue of this contest."

Pattison has addressed many people. The fact that he has twice been elected governor was a magnet which drew the populace to his meetings. They wanted to see and hear him. They were treated to an hour devoted to complaining of the management of the state government. They heard nothing new. It was a repetition of the same old story that John Wanamaker, William Flinn and other disgruntled politicians have been hawking over the state for the past five or six years. Mr. Pattison supposed that when people heard him reiterate these old charges that they would be converted, forgetting that hundreds of Republicans who supported the Wanamaker continuous performance have long since grown tired and returned to the regular counsels of their party.

Republicans Are Harmonious.

All over the state harmonious conditions were noticeable in the Republican party. The independents of former years have found in Judge Pennypacker a man worthy of their confidence. Counties which in 1882 and 1890 gave majorities for Pattison will this year support Pennypacker. There will be some spots where Pattison will secure more votes than Pennypacker, but when the Philadelphia county line is reached the larger score will be to the credit of the Republican nominee.

The real purpose of the candidacy of Pattison was to elect Democratic and insurgent members of the legislature. To help in this the "muddy water" party was born, and one of the chief godfathers is Senator William Flinn. This party has not proved the success anticipated, even though its candidates are well supplied with money. The next legislature will be safely Republican and a stalwart Republican will be elected to the United States senate.

Another effort of the Democratic machine has been to capture congressional districts. In this it has not been successful. There will be fewer Democrats in the next congress from Pennsylvania than there are in the present body.

FIFTY YEARS OF WEDDED LIFE

East Liverpool, O., Nov. 1.—(Special.)—The Rev. James N. Swan and wife of this city will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary tomorrow. The Rev. Mr. Swan was born in Ohio and the most of his ministry has been in this state. In 1852 he married Amanda M. Woolf at Oxford, O., and began ministerial work at Columbia City, Ind. His last pastorate was at Calcutta Presbyterian church, near here. Since 1894 he has retired from pastoral work and devoted himself to the evangelistic field. The aged couple are the parents of eight children now living, three of whom are Presbyterian ministers and one of whom is a medical missionary at Canton, China.

PILGRIMAGE MADE TO CITY OF THE DEAD

Countless Candles Burned in Long Grass of Largest Cemetery in World.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

VIENNA, Nov. 2.—One third of the population of Vienna made pilgrimages yesterday and today. All Saints' Day, and All Souls' Day, to the Central cemetery of Vienna. The pilgrims started in the early morning and returned late at night. It is estimated that 600,000 persons visited the graves in the cemetery on these two days. The pilgrims all carried wreaths or flowers and before the tombs and in the long grass buried countless candles. The sparsely occupied parts of the cemetery presented a wierd and picturesque spectacle.

The monuments to Mozart, Beethoven and Schubert, as well as the plot where are buried the 900 victims of the Ring Theater fire of 1881, attracted thousands of visitors.

This cemetery is the largest in Europe and contains 622,000 graves.

Emperor Francis Joseph and other members of the royal family placed wreaths upon the coffins of the empress and of Crown Prince Rudolph, in the vaults of the Capuchin church.

Is a Great Ballet Spectacle.

Pittsburgh will get its first real taste of an English Christmas pantomime in "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," which comes to the Alvin next week for a fortnight's stay. It is credited with being the greatest and grandest musical extravaganza and ballet spectacle ever presented in the world. The New York and Chicago press simply gushed over with praise concerning it.

SOUTHERN IRON TRADE GROWING

Report of Shipments for Nine Months Shows a Large Increase Over Last Year.

NEW FIGURES ON COAL

Big Decrease in Coastwise Shipments Into Boston—Nearly Two-Thirds Loss in Anthracite Carried by Pennsylvania Lines.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, 603 Fifteenth St., N. W., WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 2.

The end of the first three-quarters of the calendar year affords a good point of retrospect from which to compare the volume of commercial movements in the domestic trade of the United States with that of the preceding year. The September summary of internal commerce, issued by the treasury bureau of statistics, furnishes returns for this purpose.

The amount of iron and steel originating in southern territory for nine months was 1,452,550 tons, compared with 1,223,-048 tons for the first nine months of 1901.

Coastwise shipments of coal from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Newport News during the month of August were reported to the amount of 795,676 tons, and for the eight months ending with August, 10,448,048 tons. The total arrivals of coal at Boston for September were 208,294 tons, and for September, 1901, nearly twice that amount, or 396,219 tons. For the nine months ending with September this year, 2,944,307 tons were received, compared with 3,710,593 tons in 1901.

Of commercial movements on rivers and canals, that of the Monongahela is reported as amounting to 7,040,738 tons to the end of September. The freight tonnage through the canal and over the falls at Louisville shows a grand total of 1,-541,880 tons, of which 727,317 tons were coal.

Anthracite coal movements to the end of September this year are reported as amounting to 19,840,889 tons, compared with 30,224,426 tons in 1901, and 34,292,719 tons in 1900. Out of 28,115,097 tons of coal originating on the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie to September 27 of this year, 1,619,406 tons were anthracite, compared with 3,432,492 tons last year; 19,282,194 tons were bituminous, compared with 14,594,628 tons last year; 7,283,497 tons were coke, compared with 6,017,577 tons last year.

For the five months ending with August this year, the Baltimore & Ohio coal and coke movement amounted to 7,055,253 tons, and for the eight months to the end of August, 11,085,012 tons. The Norfolk & Western coal and coke shipments reached 4,889,953 tons for seven months ending with July, and 4,102,095 tons for the corresponding period of 1901.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1902.

TWELVE PAGES.

Tomorrow the voting will be done, and every citizen should do his duty. Today is the time to make a last mental summing up of the situation and to decide where duty lies. In local campaigns the candidates are generally known personally and voters are able to make choice on personal grounds where there is any doubt about issues involved. In larger matters of government it is also a question of men and of principles, but the personality of candidates is less well known and party principles cut a larger figure.

Who shall be governor of Pennsylvania, and why? Judge Samuel W. Pennypacker and ex-Gov. Robert E. Pattison are both honorable citizens. Judge Pennypacker's career on the bench has proven him an able jurist and a man of sterling integrity of character. He has never been swerved by fear or favor. If elected governor he will serve the whole people with zeal and honesty. Mr. Pattison has twice been governor. He declares himself satisfied with his own record and his party must be satisfied or it would not have again nominated him. But there is more than that involved in the contest of tomorrow. Pattison, as governor, displayed negative virtues. His administrations are marked by no positive policy. Judge Pennypacker, on the other hand, gives promise of vigorous positiveness, of progress. He will have a working majority in the legislature which will make progress possible under his direction.

What kind of progress may be expected with Judge Pennypacker as a leader? The kind that will be good for the commonwealth. A man who has lived in an atmosphere of high ideals, his impulses are for a better public life. Legal knowledge and judicial training have fitted him to advise as well as to sit in judgment upon the acts of legislatures. A deep student of history, he is acquainted with the mistakes of states and nations as with their virtues. From such a man the public can reasonably expect a forceful administration as untainted in its character as the man himself, positive, vigorous and honest. By any comparison of the two men no reason can be found why any Republican should refuse to support Judge Pennypacker. On the contrary, closest analysis gives reasons in plenty why he should be preferred to ex-Gov. Pattison upon personal grounds.

There are broader reasons even than personality why every Republican in the state should vote for Judge Pennypacker. The man is all right. But a party is greater than any man. The state is greater than the party. The welfare of the nation is superior to all other political considerations. Judge Pennypacker's success at the polls is necessary to maintain the prestige of the Republican party in the state. His election will be for the best interests of the state. A majority for him is demanded for the heartening of the Republican party of the United States, and his triumph at the polls will strengthen the hands of President Roosevelt in pursuit of the great policies he has proclaimed for the public good. His defeat would be encouragement for another assault by the forces of free trade and the even more threatening advocates of a debased currency, who so long kept the people from the prosperity they now enjoy.

Cast up the sum forward and backward. Every time the result favors the election of Judge Samuel W. Pennypacker for governor. His nomination was a Republican protest against the evils complained of in our state government. His personal character is a guarantee of courage, honesty, determination and ability. His party affiliations are significant to the country at large. His success spells Republicanism, true protection, sound money, prosperity and Roosevelt. His defeat spells danger. It is the duty of every Republican and of every citizen who believes in a continuance of safe, progressive policies to so mark his ballot tomorrow that it will be counted for Judge Samuel W. Pennypacker for governor.

Fully 50,000 persons passed through Phipps' conservatory in Schenley park, to see the magnificent exhibit of chrysanthemums, yesterday. Probably no other flower show in the world has attracted such a large number of people. Other American cities may wonder why it is that so many people turn out to this annual event in Pittsburgh, particularly cities that appear in the census tables with much larger populations. The explanation is that these exhibitions are attended by the Greater Pittsburgh; the people of the vast industrial region of which the city of Pittsburgh is only the center—the hub of the wheel.

Twice a year Mr. Falconer, the able superintendent of parks, prepares for Greater Pittsburgh flower shows not excelled anywhere, if they are ever equaled. The munificent gift of Mr. Henry Phipps of the great conservatory makes this possible. These exhibitions attract gardeners, florists park superintendents from other cities because are the best of their kind. They also attract ople for whom they are intended in great —people educated to appreciate and adblossoms produced in early spring and late autumn. They are the people of the Greater Pittsburgh.

What is the Greater Pittsburgh? It is the Pittsburgh region. It is a territory that contains within a radius of 60 miles, having the city of Pittsburgh, or, more definitely, Schenley park, for its center, a larger population than any other similar area in the United States, except New York. It is the region that produces more wealth annually than any other similar area in the world—a region covered with industrial cities and towns, teeming with mines, mills and factories. The Greater Pittsburgh does not contain as much wealth as Greater New York, but its wealth is more generally distributed. It is the region of production of coal, coke, iron, steel, glass, brass, pottery, petroleum and natural gas.

The city of Pittsburgh is the natural center of all the industries named and the trade center of the territory in which they flourish. It has also become the educational, literary and art center for this important district. To its flower shows, art exhibitions, musical entertainments and literary attractions the people come from all parts of the tributary territory, three excursion train loads having formed a part of the thousands who yesterday visited the chrysanthemum show. It is difficult for the outside world, with nothing but census reports, or even postal receipts, to guide them to understand the real importance of Pittsburgh. The bank exchanges, which include Allegheny, McKeesport and smaller municipalities in the county, give some indication of the true conditions, but only those who know the Pittsburgh district can fully realize all that Pittsburgh stands for, or see at a glance why its exhibitions are so well attended. It occupies no mean place among the great centers of population.

A PLAIN CASE.

A plainer case could not be presented than that on which the people of Allegheny county will give their verdict at tomorrow's election. Ordinarily, maladministration can be shown to exist only from its results as evidenced in waste of public money, squandering of public resources, deterioration of public service, scamped and shoddy public work, negligent management of public interests, low tone of official conduct, increasing demands upon taxpayers and diminishing returns to them in benefits of government. There is a mass of such evidence before the people of Allegheny county justifying severe inference as to the character of the administration of public affairs, but the people have had in addition the peculiar advantage of seeing the very springs of action laid bare, so that both cause and effect are in evidence.

With the exception of the recent disclosures in St. Louis, showing how public franchises were sold on private account, we do not know of a fuller revelation of sordid purposes animating political control than was made here in Pittsburgh on March 16, 1896, when the Flinn treaty for "mutual political and business advantage" was published. In terms as formal and specific as a bill of sale, it proposed to convey control of Allegheny county representation in nominating conventions upon conditions that the local ring should be allowed to exploit local resources without interference. The various evidences of maladministration which have appeared are simply the symptoms of conditions produced by the system of exploitation thus disclosed.

The true cause of maladministration was again revealed to public view in the recordership deal, by which the Pittsburgh city government was turned over to the Flinn ring. Negotiations at the historic congress of Vienna, when lands and peoples were apportioned among the various powers of Europe, were not carried on with more public display than the negotiations between the ambassadors of the ring and Gov. Stone. Their visits to Harrisburg and to Atlantic City were conspicuous public events, and the chain of causation which led up to the famous P. S. message was manifest from first to last. The corruption and demoralization which ensued are results of this system of managing public affairs for "mutual political and business advantage." Even such an administrative detail as the building of a reservoir that will not hold water stands before the public in its true connection, so that every personal link in the chain of causation is fully known.

Thus, while the existence of the system might have been justly inferred from its results, the people have the advantage in this election of having had the system itself directly exhibited to them in its specific character and of having seen its contrivers and managers setting it up in full view of the public. In the face of such evidence, what campaign deception can be plausible enough to trick voters? "Surely in vain the net is spread in the sight of any bird." The people of Allegheny county would display an apathy not to be credited of any community of American citizens if they did not seize the first possible opportunity to express their indignation. The people of Pittsburgh were heard from last February; now let Allegheny county speak.

A DELAYED UNION OF HEARTS.

A long standing cause of irritation between England and Germany may soon be explained away or smoothed over if we are rightly informed by recent cable dispatches. It has been almost forgotten in this country that two years ago when Mr. Chamberlain, the English colonial secretary, made a speech exploiting the possible alliance for world politics of England, Germany and the United States, Count von Buelow, the German chancellor, followed it quickly with a repudiation for Germany. It was very unpleasant for Mr. Chamberlain, and while it was recognized that he had intruded on the province of the English foreign secretary, nevertheless, England resented the German chancellor's curt response. Mr. Chamberlain of necessity permitted the matter to be set down by the English public as one of his youthful indiscretions, so to speak, for Chamberlain is always youthful in his championship of ideas. Now, however, he is in some measure vindicated in a published report of a conversation between the German ambassador to London and the British ambassador at Berlin, in which the former's complaint of English official coldness toward German projects the world over was met with a polite regret, and with the added remark, "But what could you expect after the way Chamberlain was treated?" And then it develops that Chamberlain's speech of two years ago was inspired by a conversation in England with the German emperor, and that the thoughts expressed by the English minister were born in the brain of the kaiser, though perhaps enlarged and improved by the Englishman.

While this advertises von Buelow in the curious role of repudiating the policy of his master, who had been strenuous enough to dismiss a Bismarck from his service, it perhaps also sheds light on Chamberlain's real offending. The story is designed to justify England against a German complaint, but unless there is more to tell it shows Chamberlain as trying to seize credit for a large policy that was the German emperor's own, in part at least, if not in its full form, and which the emperor might have preferred to give to the world himself if he could have done so without giving offense to other powers not included in the steps of the program. Also, unless there is more to tell, it shows him as giving the world advance information of a merely budding Anglo-German-American alliance without first finding out whether it was agreeable to his colleagues and the then premier, Lord Salisbury. Mr. Chamberlain was apparently dazzled with the brilliancy of an idea into being guilty of a serious indiscretion. There must have been heart to heart talks in the British cabinet, and explanations that kept Mr. Chamberlain on his feet and caused British officials to feel resentment toward German officialdom, but it really looks on the surface as if the German emperor had some right at the time to complain, and to, perhaps, inspired von Buelow, or at least let is go at that after the chancellor had spoken. It is at the same time a little too much for belief that there has not been knowledge of the facts among the officials at Berlin, and that the German ambassador at London had to go to Berlin to learn of them from the English ambassador at that capital.

However, there seems to be a disposition on the part of Germans and English to clean the slate and make a new start with each other, and the assiduous cultivation of the United States by the German emperor and by all Britain makes for a general good understanding among the three peoples, if not an alliance. On our side a specific alliance for general purposes is not desirable, but a good understanding is. But we cannot, of course, participate in even so agreeable a thing as a good understanding that would bar others. The kaiser, who seems to have studied American institutions to much better purpose than some Britons, probably appreciates this, and it was, perhaps, a good understanding rather than an alliance he had in view in conversation with Chamberlain. A good understanding is a thing of growth rather than agreement, and too much sunlight is often as bad for it as stress of weather. Mr. Chamberlain was precipitate in thrusting the plant into the sunlight. It needed shade for its proper development. It is apparent that he did not understand its nature, and erred grievously in endeavoring to force results. However, it may be a lesson to him not to interfere with the gardening of others or try to rob them of its fruits.

PENNSYLVANIA IN CONGRESS.

Gen. Grosvenor's contribution to the windup of the campaign is a prediction of a Republican majority in congress of not less than 38. He gives the Democrats seven in Pennsylvania, which is all they ought to have, and he gives them one in West Virginia, though he is hopeful they will not have any. He makes the score in Ohio 16 to 5, but is hopeful that the Republicans will make it two better. But giving the Democracy the benefit of the doubt in each case the Republican majority, as he sees it, is almost two score. This is a good working majority, and Grosvenor's success as a political prophet inspires hope that his maximum, rather than his minimum, will be reached by the Republicans. The result in the three states that have already voted justifies the hope.

Republicans of Pennsylvania should be spurred to their full duty by the tables of estimates prepared by the Ohio congressman. They show the proud pre-eminence of the Keystone state in the councils of the Republican party. It should be the aim of Pennsylvanians to preserve that pre-eminence. The normal Republican representation in congress under the new apportionment is 25 members. This is the number set down by Grosvenor to be elected by Pennsylvania Republicans at tomorrow's election. Pennsylvania heads the list of supporters of the policies of McKinley and Roosevelt. New York with 37 congressmen against Pennsylvania's 32 is expected to elect but 23 Republicans against an expectation of 25 for Pennsylvania that ought to be realized. It is what the nation looks for and it is the duty of Pennsylvania to come fully up to the mark. It really ought and likely will do better, but with such a representation the claim of this state for the speakership will be on safe ground.

Although Controller Larkin's powers in the premises have been denied by the local courts there ought to be power somewhere to get a reservoir that will hold water for the money that is spent.

Judge Gordon's efforts in Pattison's behalf lacked enthusiasm and were more useful in squaring the judge's party record than in making votes for the Democratic nominee for governor.

The fellows who didn't see it coming in time to stand from under will be of the same mind as in last February about the profitableness of efforts to analyze a landslide.

In Ohio Republican Chairman Dick and the Democratic political prophets agree that the state will go Republican. It's merely a question of majority.

If the voters in the Thirty-second district do not get after Candidate Barchfeld with an ax they will certainly down him with their ballots.

By the way, has it been noticed that William Jennings Bryan has been trying to help his party by bridling his eloquence?

What are a few leaks in the new reservoir compared with the general leaky condition of the municipality and county?

The New York Herald refuses to predict the result of the election in New York state. Oh, well, leave it to the people.

Every Republican elected to congress will be an indorsement of President Roosevelt's courageous and just policies.

In urging the people to vote for Pennypacker the German-American alliance may be said to talk United States.

Gen. Grosvenor thinks Pennsylvania will send 25 Republicans to congress. That ought to be easy.

This is not a good year for rings. It is a year for the people and prosperity.

It is almost time for the voter to step up to the ballot box and do his duty.

The only way to vote is to vote right, and there is but one right way to vote.

It will be a great time for the people who told you so.

And there will be other popular triumphs to follow.

Just watch Pennypacker win in a walk.

To Curb Fast Auto.

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

The Yonkers man who was sentenced to the penitentiary for driving his automobile into a collision with a trolley car has been released on a writ of habeas corpus claiming that the blame should fall upon the motorman. Very likely they should divide it. The rural motorman, as President Roosevelt learned by experience, has ideas about the "right of way" very similar to those of the automobilist. When the two come in contact somebody is likely to be hurt. In the meanwhile the automobilist is getting himself very generally disliked. A New York chauffeur, who ran into a wagon on a turnpike in Connecticut and caused the death of one of its occupants, has been sent to prison for a year. There is no better way to keep the mad automobilist in restraint.

The Devil's Campaign.

From the Springfield Republican.

It was John Adams—was it not?—who once remarked, in effect, that the politics of the state of New York was the devil's own, and that he could never make head or tail of the situation there. One is tempted to make substantially the same remark concerning the present New York campaign. It's the devil's own—which is to say also that the outcome is much in doubt, and that the Republicans are very much alarmed lest the Democrats carry the state.

NO SUNDAY QUIET FOR GOTHAM TOWN

Politics Too Strenuous in New York for Even Few Hours' Cessation.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, Nov. 2.

One more day of fighting, and then the ballots will proclaim victory for one side or the other. The one day that is to come before the opening of the polls will be devoted mainly to rounding up the resources of either side, the violent work of making speeches at widely separated points having been finished last night. Gov. Odell closed his campaign in Brooklyn, while Mr. Coler chose the same city—his home—as the scene of his winding up of the struggle. At the headquarters of each party tonight there is a large and anxious crowd. The Fifth Avenue hotel has been busy all day with Republican managers and adherents, while at the Hoffman house, next door, Tammany has been much in evidence, from the reputed "boss," Charlie Murphy, down to Bowery heelers. D. B. Hill spoke in Buffalo last night, and will not be in this city again before election. He will go from Buffalo to his own district, it is reported tonight, so that he can cast his ballot early. That makes little difference to the situation here, however. Hill has done the best and worst he could, and no one cares enough for him personally to wish him to be in New York city. Odell is still here, however, and his cheerful aspect this evening bears out the assertion that he is confident of victory. As we get nearer to the fateful day, however, we hear on all sides that it will be a close thing in this state, and the gentlemen about both headquarters, who adhere to the sporting principle that "money talks," hardly know how to place their bets. It cannot be said that there is much suggestion of Sunday peacefulness in Madison square and its surroundings. There are too many reminders of election day for that. The huge banners flapping in the breezes, the litter of rocket sticks and firecracker cases in the gutters which the "white wings" have not entirely removed, and the knots of earnestly-talking men on the corners tell the most casual observer that the air is full of politics. Perhaps next Sunday may be quiet and odorous of sanctity, but this one certainly is not.

For All Sorts of Tastes.

Music smites the ear on all sides this evening. What with the Russian pianist, Gabrilowitsch, at the Metropolitan, a "vaudeville concert" at the Herald square, and the usual Sunday night concerts at a dozen other theaters and music halls in town, no one has any reason to say New York is dull, even if he does not care to go to church. There is more and a great variety of Sunday amusement in Greater New York than in any other American city, not even excluding Chicago. New York has everything, menageries and cake-walks among other delights.

Holiday for All But Actors.

With the exception of Dusc, every theatrical star in the city will give a special matinee on election day. John Drew being to the public will in this regard, whether he likes it or not, as will all of Charles Frohman's stars, while even Mrs. Leslie Carter, who is not a stranger to nervous prostration altogether, will go through the hard work of "Du Barry" on Tuesday afternoon, as well as in the evening. Election day is a "holiday" in the eyes of the up-to-date manager, and the box office generally upholds him in that estimate.

Molineux's Quiet is Per Force.

With the adjourning of the Molineux trial to Wednesday, both sides will have a little more time to rest. Of course the defendant spent a quiet Sunday in the Tombs, because conditions will not permit of anything else. His keepers say he seemed more lighthearted than he has on any previous Sunday, however, because he cannot conceive the possibility of being in a cell next Sunday. If this is his last Sunday in prison, it is no wonder the world appears bright to him this evening. He is confident that he will be acquitted, and his belief is shared by a large portion of the public in this city.

Election Day Disappearances.

As usual there will be a large exodus of people who are regarded as New Yorkers, on account of election day. Judge Lambert, presiding in the Molineux case, will go up the state to his home, to vote, and scores of other men, less or better known, will disappear tomorrow, or have gone today, to cast a vote in the town in which they maintain a residence. The hotels are not so crowded as usual. That is another sign of the approaching election day, in nearly every city, but particularly in New York.

Dr. Dix is Still Active.

Dr. Morgan Dix, whose jubilee celebration as a clergyman was held yesterday and who is 75 years of age, is one of the most interesting personalities in this city. He has for 40 years been rector of Trinity parish, and it is seldom that he misses a Sunday in reading the prayers and delivering a sermon. Coming of a distinguished family, descended from heroes, one of whom uttered the famous order to shoot down any man hauling down the American flag, the Rev. Morgan A. Dix has always been recognized as a man of remarkable power as a preacher, as well as of intense earnestness. The special services in celebration of his jubilee in St. Paul's chapel in lower Broadway, were attended by a very large congregation. Although his age makes him indisposed to extraordinary exertion, Dr. Dix is as active in his movements as many a man 20 years younger.

Coal Situation Still Worries.

It is declared by some of the residents of the upper West Side who live in flats, that there is no good coal to be had in this city unless one is willing to pay $20 a ton. By good coal is meant what is known as "red ash," describing the color of the residue after combustion. Other coal that yields a white ash is cheaper, but it is not good for heating purposes. The assertion is made, and it has not been successfully refuted so far as I know, that what anthracite has come into the city has been snapped up by speculators, who are holding the price high, in spite of the edict of the wholesalers that only a fair charge shall be made. It is only when one lives in New York and tries to buy coal at a reasonable figure, that he realizes how easily a "corner" can be maintained, even with most of the miners in the anthracite region back at work. The indications are that when a really severe cold snap strikes this metropolis we shall get at the true inwardness of the hard coal situation here, and not before.

Bankers Follow the Birds.

Bankers here are getting ready for a jolly trip to the south. The special train will leave this city next Saturday for New Orleans, carrying the New York delegation to the conventions of the American Bankers' association, which will be attended by representatives of every big city in the union, including Pittsburgh. Besides New Yorkers, there will be delegates from Philadelphia, Boston and other eastern points on the special train. The convention will open on Tuesday week, the 11th inst.

Loses Diamond, Finds Paste.

A rather serious charge has been made against the officials of the lost property bureau of the Manhattan elevated railway. When a passenger leaves property in a car accidentally, it is the duty of the guard to take it to the office of the bureau downtown. The owner can recover the property by proving himself to be the owner. Valuables worth many thousands of dollars are thus restored every year, and the system is considered to be an excellent one. Now comes the trouble. A messenger named Morgenroth left a diamond stud, valued at $400, wrapped in tissue paper, on a seat in an "L" train. He applied at the office of the lost property bureau and got what seemed to be the stud. When he tested it, however, he found that it was only paste. Now the officials of the bureau are under fire directed by a justice of the supreme court. It is so seldom that any crookedness is suspected in this department, that the case has caused a great deal of comment, and people are wondering whether some one in the bureau is dishonest or Morgenroth mistaken as to the value of the stone he lost.

New York Again Goes to Sea.

After being in dry dock for more than a year, the big American liner New York has gone to Philadelphia. She was towed out of her dock at the Erie basin yesterday and headed for the Cramps shipyard, and should be there by this time. There was a large crowd down at the basin to see the handsome ship taken out, and passengers on ferryboats and other craft in the harbor all watched her curiously as she went down the Narrows with two noisy little tugs dragging at her. The ship used to be a familiar sight to New Yorkers, and they were glad to see her again. The Cramps will give her new engines and boilers.

Sea Bathing Still in Vogue.

One of the peculiar adjuncts of the pleasant weather we have had of late has been a group of sea-bathers at several of the seashore resorts near Manhattan. At Coney Island, Rockaway, Brighton, Staten Island and South Brooklyn there have been from one to a dozen bathers every day. Usually they go in early in the morning, take a hasty dip and come out. Then there is a rub-down, a quick putting on of clothes, followed by breakfast. It is becoming more and more the custom of some New Yorkers to indulge in winter sea-bathing. Until the air and water both get too painfully cold, these enthusiasts say that the sea water does them more good than any other treatment they can take. They say it is good for rheumatism, but that remains to be demonstrated.

Trouble Comes to Street Merchants.

Fruit and chestnut venders who establish themselves in Broadway near Herald square have a hard time of it every night. There are gangs of ragged urchins that make a practice of upsetting push carts and chestnut roasting stands, and grabbing the apples and nuts which are scattered over the pavements. This game is practiced all over the city, but there is no spot where it is kept up more regularly than along the block between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth streets on Broadway, where an immense department store was opened a few weeks ago. Stand on the "L" station at Thirty-third street any evening and you may see below a comedy, or tragedy, as you choose to regard it. Many a poor fellow who has scraped up enough money to buy a small stock of chestnuts, which he roasts and sells to passersby, suddenly sees the stand, hot coals and roasted chestnuts flying in all directions, while wild yells from a dozen youthful throats tell him that "de gang" is after him again. I saw an Italian chestnut vender last night throw a heavy piece of wood at one boy with such force that it would have killed him if it had reached him. It didn't, and while the chestnut man was picking up his missile ready for another onslaught, the small boy and his companions got all the rest of the chestnuts.

Blames All on Poor Public.

Police Commissioner Partridge blames the public for making policemen remiss in their duties. He says they like to stand and chat to a policeman on his beat, keeping his attention away from his work. This is rather too bad of the commissioner, because it implies that the average policeman does not like to talk. As a mater of fact, when a policeman wants to talk he can always find someone to take the other end of the confab, and that other one usually is a man in blue and brass, too. Old New Yorkers chuckle as they remark that the commissioner certainly has struck a new excuse for the police, but they wish, for his sake, that it were a better one. There are good policemen and bad policemen on the New York force, as there are in any city, but no one here, except Commissioner Partridge, thinks they are deteriorated by conversations with ordinary citizens, or that there are many of such conversations, for that matter.

Campania Has Rough Voyage.

That good old Cunarder Campania got into this port yesterday. She is one of the popular boats in New York, and many persons hail her as a personal friend every time she gets into her slip. She had a rough time crossing the Atlantic this time, and she looks it. She is battered, so that she has lost lots of her paint and her red smokestack with a black band is coated with salt, showing that she shipped a great deal of spray in the course of her trip. She will be all right in a few days. A few buckets of paint works wonders.

A NEWSPAPER THAT WAS FULL OF CRISP AND SPARKLING FEATURES.

Abounding in special features, fine illustrations and the latest news from the whole world, The Sunday Gazette yesterday was a perfect newspaper. The sentiment of the autumn season was expressed by its artists and special writers. Timely articles on topics of universal interest keep The Sunday Gazette's readers thoroughly abreast with the times and has established its reputation for always being up-to-date. Every article was crisp and sparkling and in this respect it presented a striking contrast to all its competitors.

Every reader of The Gazette just now is interested in politics and no newspaper in Pennsylvania contained a more accurate resume of the political situation than was presented in the columns of The Sunday Gazette.

Yesterday's edition was particularly rich in illustrated articles of travel. These included the story of the country in Southern Ireland by Edward F. Duffy; a delightful pen picture of the quaint old town of Rothenburg, Germany, by Mary Barnett Gilson, and an account of surf bathing in midwinter in Southern California.

Every woman will be interested in the description of the china used in the White House. The Sunday Gazette devoted a page to that famous collection, giving in faithful half-tones a true idea of the design and quality of the president's tableware. This is only one of the many attractive features for women. An entire section of The Sunday Gazette is devoted to matters of interest to the fair sex, and no weekly or monthly periodical in the country presents as many special articles for its feminine readers.

In printing the life story of Laura Biggar, The Sunday Gazette gave the first statement of the actress regarding her contention in the famous Bennett will contest. Miss Biggar told the story in her own words and gives a dramatic recital of her career on the stage and in private life.

One of The Gazette's industrial features was the story of the wonderful business activity in Uniontown. The article was illustrated by photographs of all the leading points of interest about Fayette county's capital and pictures of some of its leading citizens.

These are only a few of The Sunday Gazette's features. Every page contained matter published exclusively in this city. In addition every buyer received Banghart's beautiful tinted sketch, "The Summer Girl," the fourth of the series of $1.50 art works which is being presented to the readers of this paper.

PERSONALS.

"Monterey is the Pittsburgh of Mexico," said Pedro Benitez Leal, governor of the state of Nuevor Leon, Mexico, at Newell's hotel last night. Large industrial works are plentiful in and about Monterey, and a large steel plant for the manufacture of steel rails and other products is now being erected. This plant, when completed, will cost $10,000,000, most of which will be Mexican capital. The Mexican Central and the Mexican International railroads are now being extended into Monterey." Governor Leal is accompanied on his trip to this city by Emilio Dysterud, general manager of the Monterey Electric Light Company. "Monterey," remarked Mr. Dysterud, "is growing rapidly. It now contains a population of about 80,000, of which over 4,000 are American merchants and business men. Some of the largest copper smelters in the world have been erected in the neighborhod of Monterey, and other large plants are being put up. The electric plant, of which I am manager, will double its capacity, and I expect to purchase some electrical machinery before leaving Pittsburgh."

"The annual consumption of wooden tooth picks in the United States is beyond my comprehension," remarked L. B. Friedman of the Tower Manufacturing and Novelty Company of New York, at the Hotel Victoria last night. "Our firm manufactures 15 different varities of wooden tooth picks which are shipped all over the country. One of the largest wholesale grocery firms in Pittsburgh gets three car loads at a single order of the different sizes and varieties. Several of your drug firms get about 200 cases every two months, containing about 1,500,000 picks. Pittsburgh is one of the largest consumers of wooden tooth picks outside of New York city."

Postmaster General Henry C. Payne passed through Pittsburgh last night from Washington to Milwaukee, to cast his vote at the coming election. "The state of Wisconsin," he said, "will send 10 members to the national house of representatives this election. I am afraid that we will lose one Republican member out of the 10. There is hardly any question as to the nomination of President Roosevelt. He will be nominated and elected the next president of the United States."

Maj. Thomas S. Crago of the Tenth infantry, chairman of the Republican county committee of Greene county, was at the Hotel Lincoln last night. He has just returned from Shamokin, after a tour of service with his regiment. He refused to discuss the political situation in Greene county.

Sydney J. Robinson, managing director of the Jessop Crucible Steel Company of Sheffield, England, and Washington, Pa., is at the Hotel Duquesne. The new steel plant of the company at Washington will be ready to commence operations within a short time.

PATTISON'S RECORD.

He Would Not Change It if He Could, He Has Said.

Greensburg, Pa., Nov. 1, 1902.

To the Editor of The Pittsburgh Gazette:

Sir—Please inform us through the columns of The Gazette on Monday whether or not Mr. Pattison vetoed the bill passed by the legislature for the purpose of paying the expense of burying poor old soldiers and the object of the extra session of the legislature and the good derived from it if any.

AN OLD SOLDIER.

[Pattison during his second term as governor did veto the bill providing for the burial of indigent veterans at the expense of the state.

The extraordinary session of the legislature called by Gov. Pattison was during his first term. The purpose was to compel the assembly to reapportion the state into congressional, senatorial and legislative districts. Nothing came of it. The Democrats would agree to none of the schemes of apportionment proposed by the Republicans during the regular session of 1883 and nothing was done at the extra session, though it cost the state a large sum of money. The governor knew, or ought to have known, nothing would be done and the expense was incurred solely for the purpose of making a little cheap partisan capital.—Editor Gazette.]

PROSPERITY IN THE MIDDLE WEST

This Year's Crops of Corn and Apples Exceeded All Expectations.

"Never in the history of the country has there been such a prosperous year for the farmer of the middle west," said J. E. Burnham of Madison to a Milwaukee Sentinel reporter. "I have just returned from an extensive trip in Illinois, Iowa and Missouri and the statement that this has been a great year is especially true of the southern part of Illinois. At Salem, Flora, Olney and other towns in the same region both the apple and the corn crops have exceeded all expectations, although a little farther north the frost has affected the corn to some extent.

"Not only has this fall's apple crop been the largest, but the apples are of a high grade. They have a fine color and their flavor is of the finest. At Salem, William Jennings Bryan's birthplace, the apples are simply immense, although the biggest apples I saw on my last trip were at Kankakee, where three were being exhibited in a store. I had heard that three of the largest apples on record were in the town and everyone in the hotel was talking about them. When I expressed a desire to see them I was directed to the store and I assure you that they were the largest I have ever seen. The largest one measured 21 inches in circumference, while the smallest was 19 inches. I offered the man who ran the store a half dollar for the "little" one, but he refused to sell it because, he said, that they belonged to a woman who lived out in the country and he had no authority to dispose of them. Later a traveling man from Kankakee went into the store and he raised my bid to $1, but the store man held firm and refused to let it go.

"Apples are selling well, too, they told me, in spite of the big crop. In the field they bring from $1 to $1 25 a barrel. One man at Olney sold his entire crop on the trees and was paid $16,800 spot cash for the yield, so there must be a good market for America's crop according to the commission men. Because of the fine season the state fair at Springfield was the most successful ever held there."

OLD-TIME FRONTIERSMEN.

"Twenty years ago I lived on a ranch in Wyoming and led the life of the cow men who flourished in the west during the palmy days of the cattle business," said R. L. Farnham of New York, who is a guest at the Arlington. "I knew Cheyenne and Laramie when they were frontier towns of the wildest type. Those were the days when cow-punchers had plenty of money to buy flash outfits, and wore silver spurs that were not plated. Twenty-five-dollar sombreros and $150 saddles were common. When the bottom fell out of the cattle business I left the territory, and I do not want to go back. I don't want to see milch cows roaming over the range where the wild Texas cattle used to be. I don't want to look at the western towns since they have been thoroughly civilized. I have impressions of Wyoming which I do not care to efface.

"If it were possible to gather together an old-time crowd, which would engage in a characteristic celebration of 20 years ago, I might be tempted to go to Laramie or Cheyenne, just to see what sort of an impression the pioneers would make on the people who live there today. I would travel a long distance to see a repetition of a celebration that was held in Laramie early in the 80's. Cow-punchers took charge of the town. The stores were all general stores, and lines of clothing dummies stood in front of them. A cow-puncher took a fancy to one of the dummies and roped it. He rode along the sidewalks dragging the display rack. The merchant protested, but a few bullets were landed about his feet and he fled. In five minutes every clothing dummy in Laramie was bouncing along the main street, tied to the horn of a cow-puncher's saddle, and all the stores were closed. It was some time after that before the sidewalks of Laramie were decorated again with clothing dummies."

A PUGILISTIC DUDE.

"In my younger days when I was living on the farm with the old folks," said a Detroit grocer to a representative of the Free Press, "I had certain ambitions, and one of them was to be able to put up my dukes with the best of them. I had a chance to put on the gloves with the hired man and several country boys, and in time I came out on top in two or three scraps in the village. I learned just enough of the 'art' to swell my head, and the day came when I fairly ached to knock some one into the middle of the next week.

"One day the old folks went to town and left me alone, and by and by, as I was working near the highway, a dude of a chap came along in a buggy and called out:

"'My deah fellah, can you tell me how fah it is to Williamston?'

"'It is nine miles—ah,' I replied, in mocking tones.

"'Deah me, but you don't seem to like my way of talking,' he continued.

"'Naw, I dawn't, deucher knaw,' says I.

"'I am almost tempted to descend and castigate you—ah.'

"'Come down with you and I'll give you a spanking—ah!'

"He came down," said the grocer. "Yes, to my surprise and delight he came down, and I squared off to tap his claret. If any one had told me that I couldn't lick six such dandies with one hand tied behind me I would have called him a liar. I think I led for him with my left, but have never been sure about it."

"Why haven't you been sure?" was asked.

"Because it was two hours later when a neighbor found me in a fence corner, and I had a broken nose and two black eyes, and my ambition had departed forever. Whether the little dude landed on me once or 20 times I can't say, but to this day my old dad believes that I was attacked by a stray bull and tossed in the air and left for dead. I occasionally carry in the morning ice or go down cellar after a scutt

CARNEGIE'S BEST GIFT IS HIMSELF

Rabbi J. Leonard Levy Praised the Example Set By Great Ironmaster.

HIS SACRED LECTURE

Large Congregation Hears Discourse in Temple Rodoph Shalom—Trusts May Prove to Be a Blessing.

The Rev. J. Leonard Levy yesterday delivered the second of his Sunday lectures before a large congregation in Temple Rodeph Shalom. After pointing out the difference between what a man possesses and what he owns, he said in part:

We must learn to understand that we do not own what we believe we possess. Ownership means individuality; possession means temporary holdership. Time was when we said that what was theirs was theirs absolutely, and that they could do with their own what they cared. Men are awakening to the fact that they may not do with their own what they please. If we lived on a desert island, like Alexander Selkirk, we might say "To my rights there is none to dispute," living in society, part of a vast, complicated machinery, our rights are bound by law, which is the price paid for social intercourse, the debt incurred by our social instincts.

Public to Be Considered.

The present age has witnessed the introduction of a new idea in economics. In every bargain there are three parties, the contracting two, and the public, just as in all possessions there are three forces to be considered, humanity's help, nature's gift, and God's providence. This seems now, but it is old, old as Moses, Micah, old as Jesus and Paul. It is one of the essential ideals of the Jewish faith. The masters in Judea taught that God must not be left out of the contract, and the general welfare was a supreme consideration.

In the new development of commerce, known as trusts and corporations, the new-old idea must be introduced if they are to bless men. Trusts, under an honest and just regulation of law, will come to be an expression of the public trustfulness; corporations will become, not a menacing evil to free institutions as so many fear, but the embodiment of the spirit of co-operation.

True Use of Wealth.

Possession only becomes ownership when heightened by the moral ideal. Man must become to society what the transmitter is to the telephone. He must be as ready to serve as the vibrating center of sweetness, as the telephone's metal film is. This gospel of wealth has never been better illustrated than today. Men give gifts that princes could not in former years. Hospitals, colleges, universities, libraries, institutions of benevolence, are called into existence by private munificence undreamed of in former ages. The wealthy have taken the Golden Calf and instead of worshiping it, they have melted it till gold flows for public beneficent ends.

The immoderate denunciation of wealth is as absurd as undue criticism of any other useful tool. Wealth is an instrument, for good or evil, according as we use it. Some wealthy people used a heart-tonic and an opiate for their conscience, but wealth has been a great blessing to mankind and the march of civilization has kept pace with the accumulation of wealth.

Man More Than Money.

But manhood is more than money, as man is superior to the tools he employs. In the encyclopedia of utility, wealth is only one article. It is essential that we remember that wealth is well-being. Hoarding is not having. Living is giving. We have only what we give. We have only what we gild. We own only what cannot pass away. Worship is worth-ship and the reverence we owe to our fellows is conditioned by the service he renders the social body. The standard of true worth is not the money, but the man.

This is our estimate of Andrew Carnegie, whom we honor on Thursday next, the anniversary of his benefactions to Pittsburgh. We must, of course, not neglect the fact because he owns many millions, but because he has given to society the highest gifts of philanthrophy, of beneficence that does not impoverish, of service that does not vitiate, of charity that does not hurt.

Carnegie's Greatest Gift.

Mr. Carnegie himself is the best gift he has made to society. The conscientious care he exercises in his benefactions, the manly independence he has displayed, the energy and pluck he has manifested, the desire to return to society his thank-offering for the opportunity society has afforded, are among the grand elements in his make-up and are, to us, more deserving of our appreciation than the vast bulk of money he possesses.

A man's worth is his character. A man's value to society is his manly spirit. Wise men leave examples and influence. Don't wait to serve, serve now. Live to give while living. Don't say when you have enough you will part with a portion. For enough always means a little more. The highest gifts are not the power of all and are the products of a thinking brain, a sympathetic heart and a willing hand.

HOW CHRISTIAN OUGHT TO VOTE

The Rev. Thomas Clayton Urges Conscience as Guide In Casting Ballot.

"How the Christian Citizen Ought to Vote" was the timely subject of the Rev. Thomas Clayton, pastor of the First Congregational church, Allegheny, yesterday morning. Mr. Clayton's text was from Romans xiv:5, "Let each man be fully assured in his own mind." He said:

These words contain a broad and far-reaching rule, and relate to matters of conscience that every man must in the end decide for himself how he will act. They are singularly appropriate to the present hour, and to the political questions that await our verdict as citizens and voters.

We are suffering through the lack of some religious principle in our politics. Every public question is in some measure a moral question, and the pulpit must enlighten the people upon all moral issues. Politics from the pulpit are all right when they are not party politics. Therefore we feel justified in trying to point how the Christian citizen ought to vote. Not as to what party—but as to the principles that should influence his actions.

Every man should vote intelligently. The greatest danger to a free government lies in the ignorance of its citizens. It is mainly ignorance that makes such influences as Tammany possible. No man is fit to vote who has not become reasonably well informed upon every issue involved in the election. The difficulty is to get men to read and think upon all sides of a subject, to know why we vote such a ticket and that we vote for, is the solemn duty of every man.

Each man ought to vote independently. If free a man ought to maintain his freedom of action. It is when he deposits his ballot, that is his princely prerogative that no one should be allowed to tamper with.

No man should be a slave to a party ticket, but that party parties are necessary and right, but sometimes the sticking to them means the support of evil men and measures. In such a case each man should firmly stand upon his rights as an individual, and vote according to his judgment. Men talk of voting a party ticket for 30 or 40 years as though there was great merit in it. Perhaps there is at times; but there is an old saying and a true one, that a wise man changes his mind often, but a fool never.

Let each man reserve to himself the right to change his mind whenever he thinks it is right. Each man should vote patriotically, for the common weal and not for mere self-interest. Whatever is for the best interest of the city, the county, the commonwealth, or the country, so far as he is able to judge, rather than what will secure him personal advantage.

Every man should vote conscientiously or religiously. If there is a religious day in the year it is election day. To vote according to the dictates of an enlightened conscience is a sacred duty. To vote for what we are convinced is right, and not merely for victory.

If each man is fully assured in his own mind all will go well. All will not vote right, but if all vote according to the best light we can get, and all vote according to conscience, nothing but good can result.

EVANGELISM IS THE PROBLEM OF WORLD

The Rev. John A. Jayne Says It Will Solve Other Questions Before Civilization.

At the Observatory Hill Christian church, Allegheny, yesterday morning the Rev. John A. Jayne presented the third of his series of sermons on "Problems Confronting Pittsburgh Churches." His special theme was the "Problem of Evangelism." He said in part:

The problem before the Christian world at the present time is not the tariff, the liquor issue, or the money question, but how to do evangelistic work in a successful manner. Once that solved these other problems will solve themselves. The primal cause of all wrong in the world is sin, self-will, stubbornness, determination to have one's own way at all hazards. The evangel of the Christ seeks to break down this self-will of man, from whence come all these wrongs. So the problem before the church is to reach the unchurched masses in our cities, in the great lumber camps of the north, the cotton fields of the south, and the colonies on the frontier. Slowly, but none the less surely, there is a growing consciousness in the church of Jesus Christ that the simple meeting from week to week in an elaborate cathedral or church building, the singing of a few songs, the listening to a sermon, the recital of a creed does not constitute all there is to Christianity.

The world will never be saved by psalm singing, by church going, or by ceremonial obeying. It will be saved when the church is willing to bear its Master's cross, going to new Golgothas and by the giving of its own life blood seek to unite God and man in love born of sacrifice.

If you don't approve of the "hold-up" policy, you know how to put an end to it. Vote the Citizens ticket. Advt.

PULPIT CONDEMNS LAX DIVORCE LAWS

The Rev. H. H. Marlin Points Out a Great and Threatening Evil.

Polygamy and flexible divorce laws were severely scored by the Rev. H. H. Marlin, pastor of the Fourth United Presbyterian church, in his sermon yesterday morning. Mr. Marlin took the seventh commandment for his text, and touched on all the sins forbidden under that divine precept. He said in part:

The ease with which divorces are obtained and the general laxity of our divorce laws is one of the ominous signs in this country that presages the degradation and corruption of moral sentiment. Some women select a husband as they would a bonnet—a new hat, and some men select wives as they would invite a partner at a dance. Small wonder that in such cases the restraints and responsibilities of married life soon become irksome and hateful.

Polygamy comes under the curse of this commandment. The Mormons secure in their state rights and support by a poisoned public sentiment, defy the law of God and of the land. The federal government should be given power to suppress this foul and scandalous evil. The purity of the home and the dignity and sanctity of womankind is at stake, and yet we sleep while the enemy is taking city after city and state after state.

VOTED FOR PICTURES.

Big Audience at Bijou Sunday Services Chose Feature for Next Meeting.

Great enthusiasm was shown by the 3,000 persons who attended the Sunday afternoon religious services in the Bijou theater. Luigi Von Kunits, concertmeister of the Pittsburgh orchestra, rendered a sacred aria by Bach with impressive effect. The stereopticon was used to illustrate hymns and in showing scenes in the Holyland associated with the life of Christ.

Every seat in the two galleries and on the lower floor was filled. In the congregational singing every person seemed to enter with spirit in the two hymns, "Tell Me the Old Story" and God Be With You 'Till We Meet Again."

The chorus was directed by B. F. Butts, who sang the solo, "Over the Line." The audience was allowed to vote on its choice of special features for next Sunday, and chose the stereoptican views in place of the musical features.

The Rev. S. Edward Young took the life of Christ for his theme. He said in part:

"Nobody ever made a mistake in trying to follow Christ. It will help your home, your employe or your employer, the world. Like a little child beginning to toddle, take a first step. Vow that for five minutes, Jesus Christ shall have absolutely His own way with you. What a long time you have had your way! Allow Him five minutes."

TOWN DEVASTATED BY FIRE.

Government Property and Public Buildings Destroyed.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Nov. 2.—The town of St. Pierre, Miquelon, has been devastated by fire. A destructive conflagration started last night and swept the main portion of the town. The governor's house, the government buildings, the court house, the building occupied by the ministry of marine, the Roman Catholic cathedral, the presbytery, the schools and a number of other buildings were destroyed.

It has not yet been learned how the fire originated. The loss will probably reach half a million dollars.

THE CHRISTIAN AND THE BALLOT

The Rev. A. C. Dieffenbach Reminds Congregation of Its Civic Duties.

FOUR KINDS OF CITIZENS

Pastor of Church of the Ascension Pays Meed of Praise to the Man Who Votes for Purity and Right, Irrespective of Party.

At the Reformed Church of the Ascension in Allegheny the Rev. A. C. Dieffenbach preached on "The Christian and the Ballot," taking as his text Matthew xxii:21.

The Rev. Mr. Dieffenbach, while making no direct reference to the local campaign, extolled the man who has the courage to vote at the election for the right, no matter if he has to drop his party in so doing. He said in part:

The advent of the election season brings into clear view four classes of persons. They represent the varying attainments in citizenship. Each one of us belongs to one class or another. Each one of us by his interest and activity determines for himself what he understands by his sovereignty as symbolized in the ballot. Each one of us determines for himself whether man was made for the ballot, or the ballot for the man. These are the characters in the body politic:

First, no man and no ballot, second, no man and a ballot; third, a man and no ballot; fourth, a man and a ballot.

The Political Suicide.

The first is the individual who is concerned neither with himself nor with the state. He is a political parasite. Perhaps he is worse. He is dying morally in a civic sense he is dead already. He has wilfully deprived himself by his apathy for the state of the choicest power that the state affords. When a man sins against the state, or against himself, the penalty is imprisonment therefor makes him a civic nonentity. It is the grossest punishment which a republic can inflict. Hence he who of his own accord deprives himself is the most miserable of all the creatures of the universe.

The second is the individual without individuality. This is the social man, the assertion of personality. A dollar, a drink, or a driver makes him now of this party, now of that; sometimes of one party repeatedly in one election; sometimes changing his ticket in one election. Not infrequently is he the balance of power—if he can move rapidly. Always is he debauching the ballot and prostituting his manhood. His end is an ante penitentiary, or (if he has "pull") the ward management, or the legislature.

The Stay-at-Home.

The third is the individual who is of the respectables. He is likely to be a supersensitive churchman. He is hardly less dangerous than number 2, for though he is morally praiseworthy, he is insidiously self-righteous. He cries continually against the evils of his nation, state and municipality. But the government does not turn on empty clamoring. With more or less accuracy he diagnoses the political evils, but fails to apply the panacea. And yet the cure-all—the ballot—is as free as the air he breathes. With contemptible indifference, a grossly selfish crime, because he is so much better situated than thousands of his brother men.

The fourth is the individual whom the state honors, because he honors the state. He may be a party man. He may be independent. He is inevitably a thoughtful, conscientious citizen. He never fails to voice his sentiment, for to fail to do so means his civic stagnation and death. He does not say "My party right or wrong," because being a man he would rather be deemed disloyal to party than disloyal to right. To be disloyal to right means to be disloyal to God. At all elections he votes according to the dictates of a conscience enlightened by the Father, God. He makes his politics a part of his religion. Washington said: "Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political morality, religion and worship are indispensable supports." He is a Christian who enjoys his Christian sovereignty. The ballot is his instrument for perfecting the state. And in the measure of his insight, zeal and activity at election times, and at all times, he makes the state more and more worthy of its ideal—the kingdom of God.

EVERY ONE SHOULD READ A NEWSPAPER

The Rev. E. M. Wood Says It is Necessary to Keep in Touch With Times.

The Rev. E. M. Wood, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, preached a sermon last night on "Reading and Morals—What Shall We Read?" Mr. Wood said in part:

If according to Bacon, reading makes a full man, what must people be full of? And if some people follow the direction of that excellent prayer book, to read, mark and inwardly digest, what a wonderful tax they must lay upon their digestive powers?

Americans are the greatest readers in the world, as well as the most prolific publishers. What we need then is a judicious classification and careful selection. Much like the food of today is its literature, such a variety of dishes and so much of it pre-digested, that at first thought a man might think he could almost get along without any stomach at all. Indeed it is more than suspected that some ministers have their sermons dished up for them by some caterer. For all, we plead not guilty, and all who can may do the same.

Every man, woman and child should read a daily newspaper to keep up with the times. There is an art in reading a paper, as well as in anything else, so as to save time, and yet keep your finger on the pulse of the world. Taste in reading may be cultivated as well as a taste for anything else, so that it may become abnormal. Visiting libraries and reading rooms are to be encouraged for there you will find the latest and best production and the most intelligent associations. Reading courses and circles are most helpful and many of these are mapped out by the young people, who have an sympathetic touch with the wants of youth. Reserve one night or more each week for reading and at the end of the year you will be surprised how much you have read.

Big Crowd at Depot at Mt. Carmel to Cheer Home-Bound Soldiers.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

MT. CARMEL, Nov. 2.—A big crowd collected at the Northern Central station tonight and gave the Sixteenth regiment a cordial goodby as the troop train left for the homes of the soldiers.

There are now no troops on guard in any part of this region, and the authorities feel there will be no collisions between union and non-unionists.

MAHANOY CITY, Nov. 2.—(Special.) The second battalion of the Sixteenth regiment, on duty in this city since the departure of the Fourteenth regiment, left for Mt. Carmel at noon today, where they rejoined the regiment which left that city for home tonight. This is the last of the western troops in the field. A large crowd was on hand to see the boys off.

SHENANDOAH, Nov. 2.—The first battalion of the Sixteenth regiment, under command of Maj. Windsor, the last of the troops stationed in and about Shenandoah, left for their homes at 5 o'clock this afternoon. It is 24 days since the first troops arrived here. There was no demonstration at the station of any kind when the troops were leaving, although several hundred people were assembled around the station.

Slate Arranged By Machine Sure to Win There—Sermon Impresses on Minds of Congregation Necessity of Reform.

At the Sandusky Street Baptist church yesterday morning, the Rev. B. F. Woodburn preached a sermon on "Citizenship." His text was taken from Jeremiah xxviii:7: "Seek the peace of the city, whither I have caused you to be carried, for in the peace thereof shall ye have peace." Mr. Woodburn said in part:

"The words of the text are contained in a letter from Jeremiah, the prophet, to the Jewish captives in Babylon. Although in a foreign land he counseled them to aim to advance the welfare and secure the peace of the city. In short,

THE REV. B. F. WOODBURN.

they were to be good citizens. Their rights were limited. They were under the rule of an absolute monarch, an Oriental despot, but whatever course of conduct would best serve the city they were to pursue.

"We are placed under vastly different circumstances. We live under a government of the people, for the people and by the people. Our privileges are greater and our responsibilities are enhanced. Amongst Christian people, our responsibilities as citizens are not sufficiently recognized.

"Some pride themselves on their neglect and boast of their indifference and because of this failure on the part of good people to give time and thought to the interest of the city and state, individual citizens, in a so-called free country, have less personal liberty and are sometimes subject to greater oppression than under a monarchical ruler.

"I have always urged Christians to go to the primary elections. Something can be done in selecting ward officers, but when city or county officers are to be filled we are helpless until the present method of making a slate in advance is abolished. In cities where one of the great parties has a large majority, independent voters accomplish nothing unless they disregard national issues and join in a non-partisan effort to fill the offices with good citizens."

What is Said of It.

"It is without a peer in the whole noble army of encyclopaedias."—LYMAN ABBOTT, D. D.

"The Encyclopaedia Britannica is king of its tribe."—PROF. DAVID SWING.

"The most useful reference book for young or old is the Encyclopaedia Britannica. Children, beginning at 10 years old and on, need its stores of historical, biographical, mythological, elementary-scientific, natural history information. The eager boy can study balloons, kinds of dogs or firearms, locomotives, habits of the housefly or cockroach, in which only small information on subjects from geology or electricity to the settlements of Fiji Islands, of volcanoes and earthquakes, or a most fascinating story of Napoleon; and for the still older all the fundamental conceptions of law, medicine, theology, ethics, sociology, curves and functions are within the study and the way up, perhaps to the origin of some free editorial on Chinese metaphysics. Whether for education or information, no man who once has this book will ever let himself or his children be without constant access to it. If another deluge came and the ark had room but for one secular book, this is beyond any doubt the one."—CLEMENT BATES, Judge of Court, Cincinnati, O.

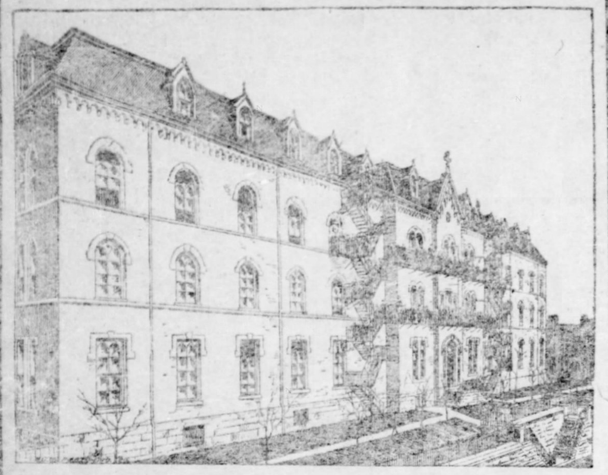
A HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN AND TO BE CONDUCTED BY WOMEN IS COMING.



This illustration shows the old St. Paul's Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum in Tannehill street near Center avenue, which it is proposed to convert into a hospital for women and children to be founded by female physicians and charitable women of the city. The building is about 300 feet long and 200 feet wide, four stories high and contains about 150 rooms of various sizes. It occupies about an acre of ground and is surrounded by yard space of half an acre. It stands on a commanding elevation above Tannehill street. The new hospital association holds an option on the property at $175,000. Part of this has been raised and it is proposed to obtain the balance by private and public subscription. Prominent charitable and society women are identified with the project, among whom are Mrs. S. Jarvis Adams, Mrs. Alfred Longmore, Mrs. Charles Lockhart, Mrs. Josiah Cohen, Mrs. W. H. Cassidy, Mrs. P. J. Simmons, Mrs. Fred A. Thompson, Miss Eda Young, Miss E. M. Roberts and others of prominence whose names are not given to the public.

The medical staff has already been chosen. It consists of Drs. Laura G. Sherin, Amelia A. Drange, Anna Stanton, Margaret Forcee, Bertha Dornbush and Mary L. Jones. The hospital will be for the exclusive use of women and children, and will be conducted exclusively by women. It will contain a charity ward, where patients will be cared for without charge.

THE THREE RIVERS.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3.—All packets on time.

LOUISVILLE—River falling. Canal, 3.4 feet; falls, 1.2 feet; foot of locks, 5 feet. Business quiet. Packets on time. The Bonanza went out in place of the Louisville to Cincinnati.

News of the Rivers.

At 2 o'clock last evening the marks on the gauge at the Davis island dam indicated a depth of 5 feet and the river was stationary.

Georges Musselman and John Godfrey were pilots on the Joseph B. Williams.

All navigation on the upper Ohio is suspended and accordingly no announcements of departures are made.

The Kentucky river locks and dams will all be repaired in three weeks and navigation be fully resumed.

An old-time boatman says: "The boating business in the Cincinnati and New Orleans trade is dead and buried, and it will never be resurrected."

Experts who have examined the hull of the towboat Sprague, say her steel plates are not heavy enough to hold the weight of her ponderous machinery.

Capt. John F. Bravo, the veteran steamboatman, spent the latter part of last week in West Virginia, making strong Republican speeches for his friend, Capt. S. B. Dayner, the congressman from the Wheeling district, who is a candidate for a sixth term. Capt. Dayner is a member of the rivers and harbors committee and a strong advocate of improved navigation on the Ohio. Capt. Bravo has been a life-long agitator for this great improvement, and is doing all he can to secure the re-election of an earnest worker for the measure.

All Who Aspire to the Greatest Success in Any Department of Industry must have access to an encyclopaedia. Professional men, tradesmen, students, machinists, electricians, rollers, chemists, superintendents, foremen, architects, builders, masons, carpenters draughtsmen, engineers, in fact, those who are engaged in any responsible position who wish to become masters in their avocation, must have a reliable reference library. Every home in which there are children, who are constantly inquiring information, should, for the sake of these children, furnish the means of meeting these inquiries. The Encyclopaedia Britannica is the great standard and has been so regarded for 100 years. No one can possibly be mistaken in obtaining this invaluable means of education. It is the most colossal work in the English language and can now be obtained for a merely nominal price and on easy terms. See advertisement on page 7, this paper.

FORCES ARE BEING RAPIDLY INCREASED

Standard Steel Car Works at Butler Now Operating Night and Day.

At its big new works at Butler, the Standard Steel Car Company of Pittsburgh last week so added to its working forces as to operate the plant day and night. The car output was increased to 35 cars daily, worth nearly $42,000. The output of the works will be gradually increased till it reaches a maximum of between 60 and 70 steel cars and 20 wooden cars.

The company is now working on the last cars of the order for 1,000 steel hoppers of 50 tons capacity, for the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad, and is also at work on an order for 500 cars placed by the Mobile & Ohio railroad, and a contract of like proportions of the Oregon Short Line. By the first of next month it is expected to bring up the daily production of steel cars to at least 50 daily. The works now employ 2,300 men, and this force is to be added to.

At Lyndora, the new suburb of Butler, which is springing up as the home of the workmen of the car works, 200 houses will soon be under roof. Over 70 of these are already completed and occupied.

ONE DEATH FROM ACCIDENT.

Former Pittsburgher and Party Thrown Into a Canal.

Dr. Francis J. Smith, a former Pittsburgher, met with a terrible accident recently near his home at Casa Faima, Cal., while driving a carriage containing a party of women and children to his orange grove near Colton, in San Bernardino valley. The horses became frightened and backed the carriage into a canal about 12 feet wide and containing eight feet of water. The doctor sprang to the ground as the carriage went over, but missed his footing and rolled into the canal. Mrs. Smith had her baby in her arms and two other small children in charge, and went down with the carriage. The baby fell from its mother's arms when she lost consciousness and floated down the canal for a considerable distance and was rescued uninjured by some Mexicans. Mrs. Smith and her eight-year old daughter were unconscious and were resuscitated with difficulty. A 4-year-old child was dead when found. Dr. Smith's injuries consisted of cuts and contusions.

The people are supreme; all that they need to do is to come out and show their will at the ballot box. Advt.

Moderate Priced

Hall Seat

Getting one's hall into proper shape is equivalent to putting one's best foot forward. And it's highly commendable.

There are various articles which may be placed advantageously in the hall. Among these the Hall Seat occupies a front rank. In fact, it is almost indispensable!

The Hall Seat shown above is one of the more simple styles and its modest price attracts to it much favorable attention.

Made of quartered oak or with mahogany finish; 43 inches long by 36 inches high.

No matter what you may wish for your hall—if it is in the line of furniture—you can get it here, where price is always an inducement and where styles are dignified and exclusive.

Come to headquarters.

CAMPBELL'S METHOD OF MEETING A NOVEMBER NECESSITY

We must close out before Thanksgiving as much merchandise as it would take to stock a store 100 feet wide and 172 feet deep.

Now for Twenty Trade Days enlivened with pertinacious, persistent pushing out of seasonable merchandise. Read the reasons in the left hand column. Dress Goods, Cloaks, Suits, Millinery, Shoes and Housefurnishings of every kind must go at profitless prices to clear 17,200 square feet of floor space and make ready for the opening of Christmas stocks the day after Thanksgiving.

We never send back to the reserve stock rooms goods once shown on the counters. When room is needed we close out things at peremptory prices.

The Situation AND The Solution.

Next day after Thanksgiving "The People's Store" will become a veritable holiday bazar. We have sized up the enormous line of gift goods already under our roof, hidden away in huge cases up in the stock-rooms awaiting the unpacking, and the carload lots already bought and on the way to Pittsburgh by fast freight or awaiting our orders at the storage warehouses and freight houses, all of which must have a place on our retail floors November 28th. We find that to give these goods a suitable showing, 17,200 square feet of floor-space will be required, with all the counters and tables and shelves that can be made available in this much room.

This is the schedule of the Christmas Stocks and the floor-space they demand:

	Sq. Ft.
Toys and Games	3000
Gift Furniture	3000
Christmas Books	2000
Oriental and Fur Rugs	1000
China and Bric-a-Brac	1000
Framed Pictures	1000
Children's Fine Apparel	500
Men's Fine Apparel	500
Cut Glass	500
Art Linens	500
Fine Bed Furnishings	500
Christmas Candy	500
Jewelry	500
Silverware	500
Gloves	300
Fine Furs	200
Sofa Pillows	200
Leather Goods	200
Christmas Dress Patterns	200
Fine Umbrellas and Canes	200
Men's Scarfs and Mufflers	200
Fine Stationery	200
Perfumes, Atomizers, etc.	200
Aprons and Dressing Sacques	100
Laces, Neckwear, etc.	100
Slippers	100
Total	17,200

Our Fall and Winter Goods now take up all the available retail space, so to secure all this room which is equal to a ground-floor store 100 feet wide and 172 feet deep, we must cut down our regular stocks in twenty trade days as follows:

	Sq. Ft.
By closing out the House Furnishings completely	2000
By contracting the Cottons and Linens down stairs one-half	1000
By contracting all Ground-floor stocks one-fourth	4200
By contracting Millinery one-half	1400
By contracting the Cloaks and Suits one-half	2600
By contracting Carpets and Draperies one-third	2000
By contracting Men's Clothing one-third	1000
By contracting Furniture one-half	3000
Total	17,200

So you see there is a logical, urgent, immediate reason for the great November movement of regular merchandise at peremptory closing-out prices which begins today, and will continue with the "specials" announced herewith and others to follow until Thanksgiving Day.

Christmas Goods this year will find their way up as high as the Fourth Floor. So the Men's and Boys' Clothing Department falls into line with November Sale "Specials."

DREYFUSS WILL FIGHT AMERICAN HERE

WON'T FIGHT FOR PLAYERS IN COURT

Pittsburgh Club Will Release Any Men Who Break Contracts.

TO FIGHT AMERICAN

"If the ball players who are at present under contract with the Pittsburgh club for next season want to break their contracts and play with the American league President Dreyfuss will not go into court to restrain them."

This is the statement of Secretary Harry C. Pulliam of the Pittsburgh club, made last night. Pulliam returned yesterday morning from New York, where he has been spending a three-weeks' vacation. He left President Dreyfuss in Philadelphia, and he will probably return home tomorrow.

"To set at rest now and for all time the rumors that have been sent out from Chicago recently that several of the Pittsburgh men under contract will be with the American league team next year," continued Pulliam, "it can be stated positively that all the men now under contract will play with Pittsburgh next season.

Contracts Are Binding.

"The contracts signed by the Pittsburgh players at the close of the season are of a most binding nature. They have clauses in them that will hold good in any court in the United States, but we expect to have no contract jumpers.

"I may say the contracts are of the regular order with the exception of the added clauses, but I refuse to state if the 10-days' clauses are recorded in them.

"At the close of the season this year we released every man we did not want. We have not released Chesbro as yet, but he may obtain his release any time he wants it. Chesbro was advised by us to go to the American league.

"One year ago we called a meeting of the members of the Pittsburgh team and asked every man if he wanted to remain with our club or go to the American league. Every player stated he wanted to play in Pittsburgh.

Players Were Released.

"This year, in an attempt to break up the local club, the American league got Chesbro, Tannehill, Conroy, Smith, Davis, Leach and O'Connor to violate their contracts and sign agreements with the American. Of these players we have released a number. The others have all signed contracts for next year and we do not anticipate any violation of them."

It was suggested to Pulliam that some of the players had violated their agreements once and might do it again, to which he made the following answer:

"If the players now under contract appear in American uniforms next April the Pittsburgh club will not fight for them, but will give each and every player who violates his contract his unconditional release. While our new contracts will hold good in almost any court, we have no idea of testing them, and if any player does not want to stay with Pittsburgh he may be free to go where he chooses.

American Won't Be Welcome.

"Now as to the American league coming into Pittsburgh. The local club will not welcome any opposition. We don't want or expect the American league to come here this year. If an American team is put in here, however, we will fight. It will mean a loss of much money to both teams for the National to have opposition here.

"If an American franchise is to be granted here we would rather it would be given to local business men instead of a foreign syndicate. It would be much pleasanter to deal with Pittsburghers than outsiders. If Pittsburgh will sustain two baseball clubs, all well and good, but in the long run it will be the survival of the fittest, and it is our intention to fight to the bitter end.

"We do not know anything about the American getting into New York. While in the metropolis neither myself nor President Dreyfuss saw Dan Johnson, and the report that we sought him to stay out of Pittsburgh is absurd."

In answer to a question as to whether the Pittsburgh club was for sale Pulliam said:

"The story that Dreyfuss wants to sell the local team is untrue. It might be sold if the proper price be offered. Every man has his price, you know. There is only one certainty about the sale of the Pittsburgh club, and that is, if it is disposed of the buyer will have to be favorable to the National league. No American league sympathizer can secure it."

AUSTIN RICE BAILED

Bonds of $500 Furnished and Fugitive Is Released—Young Corbett Escaped to New York.

WATERBURY, CONN., Nov. 2.—Austin Rice, the pugilist who was arrested in New London last night, was brought to this city today by Sheriff Rigney and shortly afterward was released on bonds of $500, furnished by William McGrath, who is associated with William Crowley in the attempt to pull off the boxing exhibition before the Waterbury Athletic club, November 6.

The warrant was issued yesterday by F. J. McMahon, the clerk of the city court, alleging that Austin Rice and "Young Corbett" on November 6 intended to break the peace by holding a boxing match.

The petition for the arrest was signed by men prominent in church circles here.

Rice was taken to Unionville last night by Sheriff Rigney to have him identify "Young Corbett." Earlier in the evening Corbett had been arrested by a constable and taken before a justice of the peace, who was unwilling to hold him.

He was accordingly released and immediately took a train for New York, where he had two urgent engagements today. Corbett's manager promised to have him on hand Monday morning, when both he and Rice will appear in the city court. It is expected that they will be put under heavy bonds to keep the peace.

The warrants have been issued for the contestants in the two preliminary bouts, Willie Lewis of New York and Jim Haywood, the "fighting demon," of Waterbury; Tommy Sullivan and "Kid" Bradley, both of Waterbury. They will be served tomorrow.

Cornelius Seriously Injured.

One of the heavy East Pittsburgh players crashed into him, knocking him down and causing concussion of the brain, besides numerous other injuries about the head and shoulders. He was taken to the Pennsylvania Railroad hospital.

MAY GET DAMAGES.

Hearings in Suits of American Jockeys Have Been Set for November 10.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The hearing of the suits brought by J. Reiff and Milton Henry, the American jockeys, against the Jockey club for damages for having deprived them of their licenses, has been fixed for November 10. The jockeys claim $40,000 damages.

The licenses of Reiff and Henry to ride on French tracks were recently withdrawn by the Jockey club, as an outcome of an investigation made by the detective department of the jockeys' methods of riding.

Vote next Tuesday for good government. Vote against the rings, cabals, business interest deals and the whole system of public office for private profit. Vote the Citizens ticket. Advt.

TWO NEW RECORDS MADE.

Weight Throwers Established World's Mark With Discus and 56 Yesterday.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Two world's records were broken at weight throwing today at the Star Athletic club games in Long Island City and new figures established with the discus and "56."

The first set of figures in the keeping of Father Time which went flying was the mark of 28 feet 5 inches for throwing the 56-pound weight from a stand, held by John Flanagan, and made in Madison Square garden last winter. "Jim" Mitchell, the former champion and record holder at this game, took a shy at the record and succeeded in hanging up a mark of 30 feet 2 inches, completely eclipsing the world's best figures.

The second remarkable performance of the day was seen when Martin J. Sheridan, the holder of the world's best discus mark, sent the figures soaring from 129 feet 8½ inches to 133 feet 7 inches.

Keeping down the millage by resorting to extravagant valuations is a ring trick. Vast sums of the people's money are being spent for inferior service just the same. When the Citizens party candidates are in office the taxpayers will get full value for the taxes. Advt.

WALTER CAMP SLIGHTLY HURT

Famous Yale Coach Dislocates Knee---Harvard Eleven Criticised.

TIGERS CONFIDENT

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Nov. 2.—Walter Camp, Yale's athletic advisor, suffered a dislocation of his old football knee to day while walking through the New Haven Country club grounds. His injury was caused by his slipping on a stone.

He was taken home by Frank Butterworth and the injury attended to by Dr. Sandford, the Yale football surgeon, who told Mr. Camp that he would be able to be out late this week. Mr. Camp expected to be in charge of the football coaching this week, in view of the poor Yale showing of yesterday.

The Yale eleven returned today from New York with every player in good condition. Wilhelmi's poor work yesterday will probably result in his being replaced by either Rafferty or Coffin permanently.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Nov. 2.—Now that the flush of victory has passed, the Harvard men see the truth of the coaches' criticism of the play in the Carlisle game, yesterday, for it was clear to observers that Carlisle lost the game through carelessness, and that, man for man, Harvard was played to a standstill.

Only fumbling at critical points lost Carlisle the game. Harvard luck won. The coaches particularly are chagrined over big King's pitiful showing against Wheelock, who made a monkey of him, and a dark horse will be lined up in substitution at the Yale game. Then the offensive work was jerky, and the defense so poor that, beginning tomorrow, the team will undergo a rigid overhauling.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 2.—It is to be hoped that the large and unexpected score of 22-0, which Princeton made against Columbia, will not give the Princeton players a false idea of their own strength. Such mistakes have been made in football many times. Such victories as was Princeton's in this game is more to be regretted by coaches than to be rejoiced in.

Especially is this true when a coach has upon his team green and inexperienced players, for it is most difficult to impress upon such men that, as in this game, what might and should have been a hard-fought and small score victory was by accident turned into overwhelming victory.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—That Pennsylvania won the Columbia game yesterday comes as somewhat of a surprise to the coachers. The game was not won because of Penn's superior physical condition, or because of the greater individual strength or prowess of the players.

The Columbia team was composed of players heavy and strong physically and of considerable football experience. Penn won the game because the men got together in every play and on the defense played with all the desperation and nerve in them.

Good government is a blessing. It will never be had in Allegheny county while a vestige of the old machine party remains. Aid the movement for good government by electing the Citizens county ticket. Advt.

VICTIMS RECOVERING.

No Fatalities Expected to Result from Collapse of Chicago Grandstand.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Victims of the collapse of a grand stand at Marshall Field yesterday during the football game between the Michigan and Wisconsin University teams were reported today as recovering. Bruises were the extent of the injuries of most of those who were hurt. M. R. Kay, a traveling salesman, whose home is at Cairo, Ill., is in a serious condition at the Chicago hospital. It will be several weks before he will be able to leave his bed.

Dr. C. M. Waugh, who also was taken to the Chicago hospital, was able to return to his home at Tolucs, Ill., today.

Deals on the basis of "mutual political and business interests" are the Flinn ring specialty. Vote for the public interest, which is yours, and elect the Citizens party candidates. Advt.

VICTORIA HOCKEY TEAM IS ADMITTED

Western Pennsylvania League Now Complete—Miller Re-Elected President.

At the annual meeting of the managers of the Western Pennsylvania Hockey league at the Duquesne garden yesterday afternoon the Victoria club was admitted to membership in the league, completing the list of four clubs.

The new club is entirely a Pittsburgh organization. W. Sixsmith will manage and captain it and he is said to be backed by a number of prominent busines men. At the meeting yesterday Sixsmith was granted his release from the Keystone club.

There were five applications for the vacant membership, Homestead, Iroquois, A. A. A., D. C. & A. C. and Victoria. Homestead was strongly considered and Iroquois stood a fair show of being admitted to membership.

The report that a Homestead man was already in Canada in search of players caused the members of the league to fear the steel town team might be stronger on the ice than any of the present sevens and their application was turned down.

Charles S. Miller was re-elected president of the league for this year and the secretarysnip went to Claude Kahl. Walter Thompson, Charles S. Miller and James P. Barr were appointed a committee on schedule and will arrange the games as soon as possible.

The old rule that players had to be signed by teams and report by November 28 was done away with, and instead a new ruling was made that players can be signed and report at any time, but no new men can be secured to play the last three games scheduled who have not taken part in any other contest during the year.

The Duquesne garden will be opened for skating on November 28 and on the following Friday night the first hockey game of the season will be played. The teams may not all be completed by the first game, but most of the players will be signed by that time.

The four teams of the league are: Keystones, Charles W. Houston, manager; Victorias, W. A. Sixsmith, manager and captain; Bankers, Richard Boon, manager and captain; P. A. C., Charles S. Miller, manager Reynor, captain. The Keystones have not as yet named a captain for their team. A good man has been secured, however, for the position.

It is the intention of the league to select a referee for the season. The name of a prominent hockey expert from Ottawa, Ont., is being considered, but as yet the official has not been chosen.

THE DEATH ROLL.

Clarence H. Swearingen.

Clarence H. Swearingen, aged 37, of Sewickley, died suddenly Saturday evening in a sanitarium near Cincinnati, where he went about two weeks ago for his health. For some time past Mr. Swearingen had suffered from heart trouble. His relatives in Sewickley heard from him Saturday morning, and his sudden death was a great shock to them. His uncle, S. E. Lake, left for Cincinnati Saturday evening to visit Mr. Swearingen, unaware that his nephew was dead. Mr. Swearingen was a manufacturers' agent and represented a number of Pittsburgh's leading business houses. He was born in Wheeling and was the son of the late E. B. Swearingen, originator of the weekly and daily Wheeling Intelligencer. He was educated at the Lindsay institute, at Wheeling, and the Morgantown academy. When a young man he went to Philadelphia, where after several years' experience in the business he opened a wholesale notion house. After 20 years he sold out and came to Pittsburgh. He made his home in Sewickley with others of his immediate relatives at the Park Place hotel. He was the brother of Maj. T. Brent Swearingen, formerly a prominent insurance man of Pittsburgh. He was also a brother of Mrs. Lake, of Sewickley. Mr. Swearingen was a veteran of the civil war, having served in a Philadelphia regiment. He was a Mason, and a member of the Protestant Episcopal church.

Dr. Albert Leighton Rawson.

Dr. Albert Leighton Rawson, whose name for many years was familiar to the public, died of general debility at his home, No. 450 East Fifty-first street, New York, Saturday evening. He was 74 years old.

In this country and Europe Dr. Rawson was known as a portrait artist of considerable ability, but was perhaps better known as a writer and illustrator of Biblical works. He spent many years of his life in the Holy Land, and received degrees from a number of institutions of learning. He was also an able linguist.

In 1872 Dr. Rawson married the daughter of Laura Keene, the actress, who came into fame through being the leading woman on the stage of Ford's theater in Washington on the night President Lincoln was assassinated. Dr. Rawson's wife inherited a considerable fortune from her mother, and among the legacies was the dress that Miss Keene wore on the night of the tragedy. Miss Keene entered the box after the shot was fired, and while assisting in caring for the wounded president her dress became stained, and those stains were ever afterward visible.

Mrs. Julia N. Martin.

Mrs. Julia N. Martin, widow of James T. Martin, a well-known business man of Braddock, died at the home of her sister in Stewart avenue, McKeesport, yesterday morning, aged 57 years. TWO SISTERS ARRESTED FOR STEALING DRYGOODS

Confessed Shoplifting at Beaver Falls and Are Fined $50 Each.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BEAVER FALLS, PA., Nov. 2.—Two sisters, Blanche and Minnie Green, were arrested in the drygoods store of W. H. Benson at this place last night for shoplifting. When searched at police headquarters about $30 worth of goods was found in their possession, all of which they confessed to have stolen from Mr. Benson's store. They said they lived in New Brighton as domestics and had come from West Virginia. They were elegantly dressed.

Justice Piper fined each $50, which they paid, and were allowed to depart.

That an organized gang has been at work in the large stores in this place for some time is evident, as merchants report more or less goods missing. A few days ago a woman was caught shoplifting at McLean's store at this place.

LUTHERAN CHURCH DEDICATED.

First Serives Are Held in New Edifice at Manor.

IRWIN, PA., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—The new Unity Evangelical Lutheran church in Manor was dedicated today with appropriate services. Sermons were preached by the Rev. E. Balfour, D. D., of Allegheny, president of the Pittsburgh synod, and the Rev. S. L. Young and W. J. Miller of Greensburg. The Rev. S. K. Herbster of Irwin, pastor of the church, was in charge of the services.

Unity Evangelical church is the pride of the Lutherans of the county. With only about 40 members the congregation succeeded in building a brick church of ample proportions and handsome in architectural design. Every window is a memorial of stained glass, donated by friends. Samuel Walthour, nearly 90 years of age, donated a large bell. The church cost about $8,000 and was dedicated practically free from debt.

GREENSBURG, PA., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—Lyman Loucks, the 16-year-old son of David S. Loucks of Scottdale, who, it is charged, shot and killed Benjamin Earnest of Manor on his father's farm last week, must spend the greater part of this week a prisoner at the local jail. Shaw & Silsley, attorneys for the boy, filed a petition asking for a writ of habeas corpus. This court granted the writ and set Thursday for the hearing. The boy's father and grandfather make daily visits to his cell.

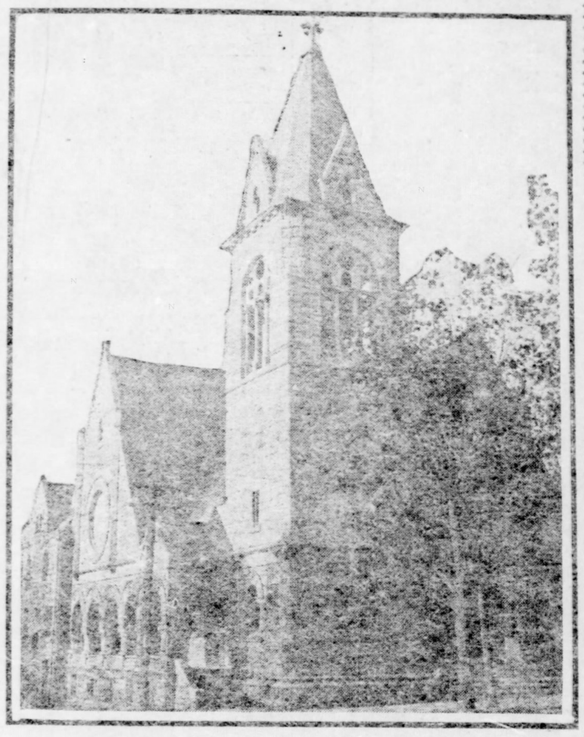
FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH DEDICATED AT SCOTTDALE YESTERDAY



The New Methodist Episcopal Church at Scottdale.

SCOTTDALE, PA., Nov. 2.—This was a red letter day for Scottdale Methodism, as it was the occasion of the dedication of the new church of the First Metrodist Episcopal congregation. Four services were held and at each the building was crowded. The dedicatory sermon was delivered by the Rev. C. E. Locke, D. D., of Buffalo, N. Y. At the close of the regular service Joseph W. Powell made an address in behalf of the building fund, and in less than an hour succeeded in raising more than half of the money needed to pay for the new church.

The children's service in the afternoon was addressed by Dr. Locke, the Rev. T. N. Boyle and Mr. Powell.

The Epworth league service was in charge of Dr. James P. Strickler, president of the league. At the evening service the sermon was delivered by the Rev. T. N. Boyle, presiding elder of the Pittsburgh district. Special music was a feature of all the services. Mr. Powell succeeded in getting a large subscription to the building fund at both the afternoon and evening meetings.

The church is of Cleveland sandstone with rock face. The building is 72x109 feet, with a massive bell tower. There are two entrances, one from Mulberry street and one from Hickory street, both leading to cloisters, which are heavily arched. In the rear of the pulpit is the choir loft, in which is erected the $5,000 pipe organ presented by Andrew Carnegie. The building complete cost something over $50,000. The pastor is the Rev. Charles L. E. Cartwright.

MAN FROM PITTSBURGH JUMPED INTO RIVER

Taken Into Custody at Beaver After Attempt at Drowning.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BEAVER FALLS, PA., Nov. 2.—Chief of Police Strayer was attracted to the Beaver river today by the strange actions of a man on the bank. He was only partially dressed. He said some one was trying to shoot him and the only way to escape was to jump into the river, which he did twice. He was taken to the lockup, where he broke everything within reach.

A paper found in his pocketbook had the address No. 620 Rebecca street, Allegheny. He gave his name as Patrick Kelley and said he lived at No. 28 Carson street, South Side, Pittsburgh. It is thought that he is demented. He is about 25 years old.

A BAD BACK.

Half the ills that life is heir to seem to lie in the small of the back—
But the back isn't to blame—If it aches and aches, and seems as though it was simply going to break, there's a reason for it—
The kidneys are responsible—
These little filters of the blood get sick and can't do the work nature expects them to do—Then there is trouble—
Poisons that the kidneys ought to take out of the blood are left in—and are carried all through the system—
Is it any wonder that the back aches—that the head buzzes—that work of any kind becomes a burden?—
Only possible way to cure the aches is to help the kidneys—and that is just what

DOANS KIDNEY PILLS

are for—to make sick kidneys well—to help them in their work of keeping the system free from poisons—They've done it a thousand times here in Pittsburgh—Are doing it every day—There's Pittsburgh proof of it—Read this statement—

"A couple of years ago I had the grip, and it left me with an awful backache as a legacy. The pain was in the small of my back, and was so bad that I could not stoop without torture. I could not find rest in any position. My urine was very much affected, and gave me great pain. Nothing I tried seemed to give me relief. My sufferings were terrible. Finally I heard of Doan's Pills, and got a box. I felt the good effects after taking six doses, and in a short time was completely cured. I am now perfectly well, and I want to tell everybody about the wonderful remedy that has blessed me so."

OLD FINANCIAL THEORY IS AGAIN TROTTED OUT

Speculators Can See Only Coming Election as Excuse for Present Stagnation in Prices in Wall Street.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, Nov. 2.

Political conditions overshadowed Wall street during the week, or at least the speculative contingent, which is ever on the outlook for some surface demonstration to account for market movements, fall upon the theory of election uncertainties to explain the continued apathy and the sagging tendency of prices. This theory unquestionably afforded the readiest explanation at hand and was probably as satisfactory to the pool and clique element in the security market as was only a short time ago theories that the coal strike, and not other influences, created the monetary stringency, and that coal and money conditions were the sole disturbing factors in the situation. That other and greater forces were at work is now generally realized, for the coal strike has terminated, and the monetary stringency has broken, but the improvement which followed in prices was not permanent and the public made no response to the furious upbidding of stocks by manipulators.

Unquestionably the considerations of a congressional campaign, like the strike among the anthracite coal miners or the high rates for money, are matters of great importance to the community, and play their full part in swaying sentiment, which is an important factor in influencing price changes.

Much Matter of Sentiment.

But as matter of sentiment is one thing and fundamental condition are matters wholly apart. The members of the house of representatives who are to be elected on Tuesday will not convene in congressional session for a period of 13 months. In the ordinary course of events it would not be gratifying to speculative Wall street if a Democratic majority should be returned to congress, but even if such an unlikely thing be the outcome, no underlying condition working either for good or ill of the immediate market will be altered in the slightest. How deeply it would concern the remote future is another question entirely. Men, therefore, who, to explain the dull and sagging market, have substituted as the influencing factor political uncertainties in place of the coal strike and the high rates of money, may find, even if the election is favorable to the present administration, that they have again entirely misjudged the situation and that the evil is fundamental.

Looking at the subject from still another viewpoint, one is constrained to ask why speculative Wall street should jubilate over the election of a Republican congress and be cast down over a Democratic success? A Republican congress is to assemble next month.

Chill Coming to Some One.

If President Roosevelt's utterances against trusts when he was "swinging around the circle" a short time ago; if his record toward corporations when governor of New York state counts for anything, and if his attitude in setting the wheels in motion against the Northern Securities Company and the beef trust, give any indication of his future course, speculative Wall street will receive little encouragement from that quarter as from a Democratic congress. If the president's views find full expression in his annual message that document in all probability will send a chill down the spine of the speculator. It is evident that the issue of trusts and combinations has been forced by the present campaign, and that in attempting to set the Republican party in line for the presidential campaign of 1904 the points at issue will receive some attention at the present session of congress.

The carrying out of a program such as this will not be conducive to the peace and quiet of Wall street or the furtherance of many more mergers or combinations. Between the possibility of a Democratic congress on the one hand, and the carrying out of a hostile campaign against interests by the Republicans on the other, speculative Wall street has little to choose. When speculators think twice over the question of the elections they may feel constrained to say, with Mercutio, "A plague on both your houses."

Fundamental Forces at Work.

Wall street has certainly more than politics to consider. There are the fundamental forces at work, the operations of the laws of economics and finance, which have been for so long disregarded, but which are now gradually forcing themselves into recognition. So far as the speculative contingent is concerned it has been a long and thankless task, that of issuing warning notes and pointing out the danger of over-capitalization. In but few instances, however, were cautionary remarks intended for the speculative element.

These men can care for themselves, and will sell as cheerfully if they can rid themselves of their burden of long stock, and the situation foreshadows lower prices, as beforetimes they bought. In some measure and to some degree it is believed, however, that the cautionary utterances of those who had the courage to make them have been largely instrumental in keeping the public out of the market and have greatly minimized the quantity of stocks at inflated prices which are in public hands. If such is the case, and practically every commission house broker unites in the opinion that the public is out of the market, there is some recompense for the jibes and jeers of the past—this because it is now evident that the bull market has terminated and all signs point to a reaction in prices with only moderate losses to the outsiders and the burdens falling where they properly belong.

SULTAN CHANGES MIND.

Declines to Allow Mr. Banks to Make Archaeological Researches at Tel-Abraham, Mesopotamia.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 2.—In spite of the formal promise given to United States Minister Leishman last August in the name of the sultan, by Izzet Bey, his majesty's secretary, to grant Mr. Banks, an American citizen, a firman authorizing him to make archaeological researches at Tel-Abraham, Mesopotamia, the porte has now declared to Spencer Eddy, secretary of legation and acting minister, that it is unable to grant the authorization in question, as the place is sacred ground and is supposed to contain the tomb of Abraham.

The porte expresses its willingness to indemnify Mr. Banks. Mr. Eddy has forwarded this communication to Washington.

Business administration of public affairs cannot be secured by electing Republican hacks to public office. There are none of that kind on the Citizens ticket. They are all republican citizens with business training. Advt.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF MARKET PRICES

Increased Demurrage Charges In Produce Yards—Wheat and Flour Variable.

There is an apparent difference in timothy hay quotations of 75 cents a ton for No. 1, as compared with prices of a week ago, but the actual difference is shown in great during the week there has been a change made in the grading of hay, and select is now quoted, including much of that which was formerly offered as No. 1. The market is easier than it was, on account of liberal receipts, which have marked the business of nearly every day. The situation is steady, however, and prices, as shown in great, differ under the average. Millfeed is steady to strong. Straw is very scarce and already there is much thought being given to the future of the market, the shortage in Ohio and Pennsylvania crops making it likely there will have to be shipments brought from farther west.

Wheat and Flour Variable.

Wheat has been variable and flour has followed in its wake. Early in the week mills made an advance in spring patent flour which amounted to 10 cents a barrel, but which lasted just five days, when bearish influences brought the market back to its former position and flour prices went down to the point from which they started. At present the situation is one of steadiness with selling mostly done at a range of $4 10@4 15.

Coffee has held its own with primary markets perhaps a little stronger, but no change in local prices for roasted. Sugar continues to sell freely, with refined quoted at the same list as on Monday. Cereals are in steady demand, but have not changed in price, excellent weather in the growing belt continuing favorable to any price gains in either corn or oats.

Beans are firm at old prices, navies showing no inclination to recede from the advanced position taken several weeks ago. Molasses and syrups are steady and active. Dried peas are unchanged. Salt fish is steady to firm, with mackerel good, while receipts of cheese of serious shortage in the salmon packs have caused fish of all kinds to assume a much firmer front. Refined oils all advanced a half cent per gallon on Monday.

Canned goods maintain the strength they have shown all season, but no farther advances have been made. Trade is moving steadily, but there has not been any pronounced rush to force tomatoes forward. Dried fruits are firm, with Ondara Valencia raisins a trifle lower in price.

Demurrage Charges Increased.

Features have not been abundant in the produce market. The principal item of interest has been the new demurrage charges which have been put in force by the Pennsylvania railroad. The prompt package system of the new schedule a dollar a day is added to present charges after 48 hours, after the next two days, $3 per day, and after the next two days, $4 per day. The schedule meets with approval from dealers having storage room in which to take care of consignments readily, as they believe it will facilitate business greatly and allow them to get cars brought down nearer to the center of business than has been the case during the congestion.

Potatoes are steady, with 65 cents a bushel the ruling price from store. Sweets are very strong, with Jerseys higher. Cabbage is weak, although no special price change. Hothouse cucumbers have been reduced. Florida egg plant is plentiful and offering at lower figures. Green beans are higher, while wax beans are unchanged. Celery and lettuce continue in demand at former quotations, and all winter vegetables are as they were at the beginning of the week. Fresh tomatoes are still in the market, but are not so desirable as earlier in the season and demand is diminishing.

Apples Active and Steady.

Apples have had an active week on account of the Halloween trade, which is always heavy, but prices have remained unchanged, with stocks plentiful. Strictly fancy apples are not abundant, however, and as Spies are in heavy returning, for the year would be disappointing, as the scab has attacked Canadian crops and will perhaps affect some northern yields in this country. The wet weather causes the growth of the scab. Grapes have held their own all week, but without advance. Cranberries are in excellent request and quotations have moved somewhat higher. Pears are abundant and lower, while quinces are in liberal supply at reduced figures.

Butter did not change in price this week, but is very firm, and not too plentiful. Cheese is firm and unchanged. There is no difference in egg quotations from those of the beginning of the week, but some dealers think they should be higher, and have commenced to force up prices. Supplies have certainly fallen off this week, but the weather is so warm as to interfere with any strong upward movement.

Poultry is easier, with prices lower. Receipts of chickens have been considerably increased this week and quotations for both live and dressed stock are lower.

Provision prices remain unchanged all through the list.

IN THE OIL FIELDS

Whatever was lacking in the way of interesting oil field developments during the past week was not occasioned by lethargy on the part of operators. Activity prevails in all fields where there is the least hope of securing a producer. Operators are less exacting as to size now so it is a producing well of some kind. Of course in the deep sand territory in the lower southwest the market has not advanced to a point that would justify the operator of small means taking the chances on getting dusters or small wells. So long as there is a chance for producers in shallow territory the favor of moderate means will not take the risk.

Operations in Kentucky are increasing and with results somewhat more encouraging than during the early part of the year. Owing to the failure of the mills to furnish the pipe as fast as needed the construction of the new pipe line system into the state is not making as much progress that was expected when the work first began. About 40 miles of line has been strung and connected and the work of completing the telegraph system is moving rapidly forward. Failure to complete the pipe line in record-breaking time will be due entirely to the delays caused by the mills in not delivering the pipe as fast as needed.

While for this season there seems to be a growing sentiment among operators that Kentucky will become a factor in the production of oil. One of the reasons given is that of late a better grade of oil has been discovered and it is nearer the Pennsylvania grade in quality. In Wayne county it is said the producing formation is found to be more regular and the composition of the stratification more nearly resembles that of West Virginia. Since a pipe line has been assured the producers in Kentucky an official in charge of the work is said to have declared for the statement that wildcatting is now under way to a greater extent than at any time since the development of Kentucky territory began. The prospecting has created a field and it shows unbounded enthusiasm. Experience will come later.

The developments in the West Virginia and Southern Ohio territory during the past week contained nothing of a sensational nature. Fewer wells were completed than for any week in several months past and there was no great rushes or excitement. There were a few gushers or opened any prospective pools. In Ritchie county, W. Va., operators are making a diligent search for new pools. This is true also in other parts of the territory. The North and South Forks of Hughes river. On the first-named stream a Big Injun sand development is a possibility and there is still hope for a sand of some kind to be found on the South Fork. With the passing of the sensational Keener sand development on Big Knot run, Ritchie county has no leading attraction except the undefined pool on Wolf Pen run, to the southeast of the Big Knot country. On Wolf Pen run there is still flattering prospects for a good producing area in nearly every direction except to the west. The old wells in this district showed a rather heavy decline in production during the week, but little was to be expected from natural result as the wells in every development increase in number.

In no quarter of the lower southwest is there so much activity as in the Gordon sand territory in Marion, Wetzel and Harrison counties. The Folsom district is in the lead with operations and new production. The average size of the wells is smaller than two months ago, but the number of wells completed is greater, so that the production is not diminished in volume. One of the best Gordon wells completed during the week was the Keaton & Cheesman No. 20 on the John Mills tract. It was thought that the gusher days of this famous tract were past, but this well produced 250 barrels the first 24 hours after it was drilled into the sand.

The Marshall county Gordon sand field presented several good wells and one surprise. The Ohio Oil Company's No. 1 on the Beer farm, in the Cameron end of the field, is producing between 30 and 40 barrels a day from the Big Injun formation. It remains to be seen whether or not this well will make good or belong to the freak class. Up to the time this well was drilled in the Gordon sand it was considered to be the only producing formation in Marshall county. Soon months ago Trees & Co. drilled in a test above Proctor that made a good showing when drilled into the Big Injun, but when drilled through proved a failure. The Theil farm test has not yet been completed and will be watched with no little interest.

On Grass run, Harrison county, large producers are in progress of completion. Of all the late Gordon sand discoveries this has proven to be the most irregular. A single location from a good well frequently results in a dull failure.

Operations on the Ohio side are active and are meeting with fairly good success. The most active district lies northwest of Rinards Mills in Washington county, Pennsylvania. In this development good producers are found in three different sand formations, the Big Lime, Keener and Big Injun. The best producers are developed in the Keener sand. In the very shallow sand territory, north of Marietta, Washington county, an occasional fine well is drilled in. In this district O. A. Harper has completed a well on the Ellis farm that has been holding up at 300 barrels a day for nearly a week. This, of course, is an exception, as the average of all the wells in the shallow development on this sand in Washington county is not much above five barrels a day.

Nothing more is known of the prospects in the vicinity of the Unity Oil Company's producer on the Cooper farm, near Monroefield. During the week the production of the well declined to 50 barrels a day. Unless this change has been brought about by some unnatural cause the chances for a pool of any considerable dimensions are greatly lessened. What the general producing sand there than two miles distant this test should show better paying qualities.

South of Knoxville, Jefferson county, there is a good show of new work starting in the vicinity of the Consolidated Oil Company's producer on the Warren farm. The strength this well has shown gives rise to the opinion that a pool of some dimensions will be opened in that locality, possibly connecting up with the old Island Creek development to the east.

Operators in the local fields are without an attraction since dry holes have been encountered in the efforts to extend the producing area of the pool lying midway between Georgetown and Hookstown, in Beaver county. For a time it looked as though there might be quite a number of small producers found in that locality.

TWO IRISHMEN COMING TO TALK

John Dillon and Michael Davitt to Speak in Pittsburgh.

IRISH LEAGUE MOVES

Representatives Will Tell of the Evils of Alien Landlordism and the Coercion Government in Ireland.

BY EDWARD F. DUFFY.

Next Thursday evening the Hon. John Dillon, Irish Nationalist member of parliament, and the Hon. Michael Davitt, who resigned his seat in the British parliament as a protest against the war with the South African republics, will address the people of this community on the evils of alien landlordism and coercion government in Ireland. Both of these men are leading Irish statesmen who have given the best efforts of their lives to the cause of justice for their country.

The two principal evils which the people of Ireland have had to suffer are the absentee landlord system and a government by a foreign anti-Irish people whose interests are different from those of the people of Ireland, and whose governmental policies in Irish affairs have, in the main, been antagonistic to the welfare of Ireland.

A careful study of British rule in Ireland for the last 102 years, or since the so-called union, will lead to the conclusion that the English government has made no sustained, honest effort to deal justly with the people of Ireland.

Some Evils Enumerated.

A large majority of the landlords of Ireland live in England, while a number of others reside in the different countries of Europe, and many of them never so much as visit Ireland, leaving the collection of their rents and the management of their estates in the hands of land agents, many of whom are also foreigners, whose success depends in a large measure upon their ability to extort the last pound of flesh.

Millions of dollars' worth of farm produce and live stock are exported from Ireland every year, the greater part of the proceeds of which goes to pay the rents of these non-resident landlords who spend the same in foreign countries. Thus, much of the wealth of Ireland is drained out of the country, and there is no return of any kind for it. Another great evil is that hundreds of thousands of acres of the best arable lands of the country are held as deer parks and game preserves, from which practically no profits are derived.

Grinding of Tenant Farmers.

As a rule, the tenant farmers of Ireland have had to erect their houses and make the other necessary improvements on their holdings, and after having made these improvements, at their own expense, they were compelled to pay additional rent for them, except their leases definitely provided otherwise. This system of rack-renting deterred most of the tenant farmers from making good improvements upon their holdings, with the result that the lands were not cultivated in such a way that they would yield such crops as might have been raised under more favorable conditions.

This was the condition of affairs prior to 1880, when Michael Davitt, John Dillon and their compatriots organized the Land League in Ireland. That organization waged such vigorous warfare on the abuses of land reform that it was but a short time until the great majority of the people of the country rallied to its standard and elected to the British parliament a large body of determined men who pledged themselves to vote and work for legislation which would relieve the agricultural classes from the bondage of the landlords.

Work of the Nationalists.

By constant agitation and persistent efforts the Irish Nationalist members of parliament then elected, succeeded in having the land act of 1881 passed, as well as subsequent legislation by which the unhappy lot of the Irish tenant farmer was much ameliorated.

While this legislation greatly improved the tenant farmers of the country, it did not accomplish all the good intended, because the men who were appointed on the commission to administer these laws represented entirely the landlord class, and consequently they so misconstrued the laws that they did not grant the full relief which the legislative body intended.

The object of the United Irish League of today is to take up the question of land reform in Ireland where the Land League left off 20 years ago, and push the issue until the people of Ireland shall become the owners of the land of Ireland; and, moreover, keep up the fight for home rule until the people of that country are granted the right to complete self-government.

"Turn the rascals out." Mismanagement and favoritism in the public offices have gone beyond the point of toleration. Vote for the Citizens ticket and a fair deal. Advt.

New Line to Pacific Coast.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COL., Nov. 2.—The Gazette says that Colorado Springs is to have another outlet to the Pacific coast, as well as a new road, which will tap the immense coal fields at Trinidad. Within 90 days, it is said, contracts will be awarded for the building of 205 miles of railroad by the Rock Island system, connecting Pueblo and Santa Rosa, N. M.

Keeping down the millage by resorting to extravagant valuations is a ring trick. Vast sums of the people's money are being spent for inferior service just the same. When the Citizens party candidates are in office the taxpayers will get full value for the taxes. Advt.

Train Kills Four Men.

ELGIN, ILL., Nov. 2.—Frank and Louis Schuette and Charles and James Woodrich were killed today at Algonquin, Ill., when a train on the Chicago & Northwestern struck their carriage on a crossing.

Nothing in the history of Allegheny county so shocked the public sense of political morality as the Stone-Flinn deal for "mutual, political and business advantage." Vote the Citizens ticket as a protest against that kind of politics. Advt.

In the Midst of Winter Fashions
And Christmas Novelties.

November! A month and a fortnight—and Christmas! Six or seven weeks of bustling activity, and this store never so well prepared to meet your every want.

Winter fashions reign supreme here—in furs, in wraps, in gowns, in millinery—in anything and everything of personal wear.

And the dainty conceits for gifts! Their name is legion. So many novelties—so many pretty things that are here only. Time all but too short for action.

Will you see them soon?

"Seconds" in Jardinieres, Half Prices.

This is a bit of delightful news for people who like to care for flowers during the Winter.

They are a manufacturer's "Seconds," and each Jardiniere is slightly imperfect—that is, they are imperfect to the manufacturer's eye, but to the ordinary eye it will be the finest kind of a task to detect any one of the imperfections. The defects simply amount to merest trifles—probably a nick here and there.

You can look them over will have to acknowledge that you thoroughly, and, we daresay, you don't see any difference between them and "firsts."

Every Jardiniere is of the rich Louwelsa ware, so much resembling the handsome Rookwood.

264 Jardinieres, regularly $2—$1 each.

216 Jardinieres, regularly $3—$1.50 each.

114 Jardinieres, regularly $4—$2 each.

72 Jardinieres, regularly $7.50—$3 each.

24 Jardinieres, regularly $10—$5 each.

Brass Beds,

And also some words of correct Springs and Mattresses.

The evolution of the Brass Bed is quite a study, as well as its adoption. The first specimens turned out were rather uncouth, and it is not to be wondered at that the women of the house did not take to them kindly. Another matter that operated against their adoption was the fact that so many metals could masquerade under the name of Brass. But in the course of time, reputable makers began to make perfect Brass Beds, doing away with all gaudiness, and the perfected Bed was at once taken up as something altogether admirable—both practical and ornamental, and the quintessence of cleanliness.

Our Brass Beds are the best that money can buy anywhere. They are reasonably priced. We daresay our prices for the class of Beds we handle are much lower than you could find the Beds priced anywhere in the greater city. We should be pleased to show anyone desiring to place these Beds in their home through our complete lines.

Prices begin at $25 and go by easy stages to $100.

The question of the right kind of Springs and Mattresses is one that should be discussed from all sides. As to Mattresses we are somewhat prejudiced in favor of hair. For this reason: Hair, like feathers, never wears out. A hair Mattress, re-covered at periods, can be run through a family as an heirloom to an expanse of time that cannot be reckoned. As for Springs, that is a matter of individual preference. Many people favor Box Springs, others make the claim that Woven Wire is just as good as any.

Both in Springs and Mattresses we have none but the very best.

Woven Wire Springs, $1.50, $2.25, $3, $4.50 and $5.50.

National Iron Linked Springs, $7.50.

Box Springs, $12.50, $16 and $20.

Hair Mattresses, $20.00, $28.00, $35.00, $39.50, $45.00.

Cotton Felt Mattresses, probably better than you would find at prices a great deal higher, $7.50, $9, $10.50, $12 and $13.50.

A hint of the prices.

Black Dress Materials.

From abroad. Black Voiles, Black Twines, Black Silk and Wool Crepes, in an easy range of prices—75c to $2.50 a yard.

Just in from the Pittsburg Custom House, Black Bouttonne Voile, which we think can hardly be found in any other store in the two cities. Our Paris office, being only next door, as it were, keeps us always in advance with new styles.

This new Bouttonne Voile comes in shades of blue, and as a perfect black.

Those who buy it today will have something that will hardly be on other counters inside of six months. $2 a yard.

We have a very special black Cheviot with a zibeline finish, a material that is 56 inches wide, and that retails regularly for $1.25 a yard, but as we only have a thousand yards of it, we put the price to 85c a yard. For women who want a real neat black dress this cheviot will commend itself.

To the Front this Morning: Fur Neckpieces, Coats and Muffs.

The Coats should interest women in an unusual degree—especially those who have made up their mind to indulge in a new Fur Coat. There is everything here that the heart of woman could wish for—plain Seal, Seal trimmed with various different Furs, and the intensely popular Fur of the Siberian Squirrel.

We have many beautiful and odd things to show in the way of Neckpieces, and all in all our collection this season is so much broader and unusual that allusion to any former collections falls quite flat. In the following list there is a splendid demonstration of the great variety to be found here:

Fur Coats—

Alaska XXX Seal Coat, Russian Shawl collar and flare, turn back cuffs, full sleeves, lined with brocade, $650.

Alaska Seal Coat finished with Sable Collar, revers and cuffs; new Bishop sleeves, $350.
